'INTERPRETATION' CUTS BUSES

VANCOUVER (CP) — A reduction in buses on British Columbia Hydro transit routes today caused some difficulties for Vancouver-area residents getting to work.

A spokesman for the Amalgamated Transit

Union said bus drivers were told not to work overtime from the first runs until 8 a.m. The reason for the slowdown, said Jim Daley, is Hydro's interpretation of the spareboard rules, an issue that led to a strike last spring.

He said the bus drivers can still work the same amount of overtime as long as its after 8 a.m. The work slowdown meant 39 fewer buses were on the streets today, with Surrey and North Vancouver the hardest hit areas.

Island N-Power Generator Not on the Books: Hydro

B.C. Hydro vice president Charles Nash has denied reports the crown corporation has a plan for a nuclear power plant on Vancouver Island.

Nash, in a speech to the Chemainus Rotary Club, said there is no connection between plans for a new 500-000-volt power line to the island and the prospects for nuclear power.

(The University of Victoria student newspaper, the Martlett, said it had learned Hydro planned to use the new submarine cable to eventually transmit power to the mainland from a nuclear power plant on the island.

Hydro chairman Robert Bonner has also spoken in favor of nuclear power but he said it was a personal opinion and there is no plan in the works.)

Said Nash: "If a nuclear plant had been acceptable it could have been built years ago with a capacity of two million kilowatts — to assume the bulk of the Vancouver Island load — and to use existing submarine cables to transmit the balance of the capacity back to the mainland."

He added: "While there are merits to nuclear generation, there is no need for a new 500,000-volt circuit to justify a nuclear plant."

Nash said Vancouver Island faces a power deficiency in the future but a nuclear plant could not solve that problem because of the long time that would be needed for construction.

Hydro is looking at other alternatives, Nash said. The submarine cable will provide much of the power needed during the 1980s after it is completed in 1983.

Hydro is also actively studying the possibility of constructing a natural gas pipeline to the Island as an alternative source of energy.

Increased use of hog fuel and other sawmill waste is also possible.

Nash said Hydro will be encouraging conservation of electricity during the next three to four years to assure there is sufficient power until the new submarine cable is finished.

Union Bribe Trial Ordered

SURREY (CP) — The head of a local haulage company was committed to trial in county court Monday to face charges of attempting to bribe Teamsters Union officials. Leonard Remple, 46, president of Haul-Away Disposal Ltd., is charged with attempting to bribe Teamsters business agent Ken Steele and former union shop steward Walter Black. No trial date has been set.

COULD YOUR BUSINESS SURVIVE WITHOUT TRADESMEN?

That's not an idle question. A shortage of skilled tradesmen, journeymen and craftsmen is one of the very real dangers that your business — and thousands like it — may face in the near future.

The reason? Not enough apprentices are being hired and trained to fill the gap left by those who will retire over the next few years. It's that simple.

Sure, you've always been able to hire a worker away from someone else. But that's always assuming that someone else is training them. And it's assuming there will always be enough men and women to go around. And it's assuming that they will want to come to you. And it's assuming that you'll always be able to pay the going rate.

There's an easier way. Hire an apprentice today.

Apprentices work on a graduated wage scale until they are fully qualified, so it's an economical way to get and train the people you'll need tomorrow. They get their on-the-job training from you, so they get to know the way you want things done. And they receive technical training from us. Free of charge.

One more thing. When you hire apprentices, you're getting people who want to work. Otherwise they wouldn't be in the program.

So do yourself a favour. Hire an apprentice. Call the nearest office of the British Columbia Ministry of Labour about the 177 different trades of the Apprenticeship Training Program.

McCarthy Aims to Cut ICBC Rate Surcharges

The provincial government says it wants to revolutionize automobile insurance by removing age, sex and marital status as the basis for its Insurance Corp. of B.C. (ICBC) rates — but the corporation's president is not sure it can work.

Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy, minister responsible for ICBC, said Monday that setting rates for drivers on their records rather than broad use categories would set a world-wide precedent and recognize human rights in automobile insurance rates.

She made the statement at a news conference where the Crown corporation announced 1979 rates for compulsory coverage would be 10 per cent higher than this year, accident-free drivers would get a break and a phase-in of staggered renewal dates would begin. The average driver will pay about $220 next year and 80 per cent of the drivers will pay no more than they did this year.

"A young car owner who performs safely on the road should be afforded the opportunity to buy insurance at the same level as the older person who performs safely," said Mrs. McCarthy.

She said ICBC will study the proposed rate changes over the next several months and they would be used by 1980 if the system can work.

ICBC president Robbie Sherrell agreed it seems unfair to base rates on age and sex, but was unsure if the traditional classifications could be realistically altered and said a study was needed.

He said the 10-per-cent increase applies only to the compulsory portion of insurance rates; collision and comprehensive rates will not rise.

The safe-driving discount would be extended next year so a driver with a three-year, accident-free record would get a 32.5 per cent discount, said Sherrell. Drivers with two years of no accidents would get a 25 per cent discount and those with one year 15 per cent.

Single male drivers will also have 25 per cent of their 1978 premiums rebated if they don't make any claims and get less than five points between Oct. 1, 1977, and Sept. 30. Forms to apply for a rebate will be mailed out next week and refunds will begin in January, said an ICBC spokesman.

Renewal dates will be extended past March 1, 1980, for about 600,000 drivers next year, most of them insuring new cars. A driver, for example, who buys a new car in June would insure the vehicle until June, 1980, and that would be his new renewal date.

ICBC's premium financing plan will be available year-round, starting in 1979, with a 30 per cent down payment required and a balance of three installments payable at two month intervals. Interest will be 1.25 per cent a month.

The ICBC president said other changes next year will include allowing persons to drive students to and from school under the pleasure category use. The alternate transportation allowance for those whose vehicles which are damaged or stolen will rise to $15 a day from $10 and a maximum of $450 from $200.

Sherrell said 43,000 of the 68,000 single male drivers under 25 did not have an accident this year. Representing five per cent of the province's drivers, the corporation says males under 25 have 10 per cent of the accident claims, which are 53 per cent more expensive than other vehicle owners.

"This has to be a top priority concern among parents and motorists generally," said Sherrell, adding ICBC was conducting special information projects for young drivers.

The corporation estimates a Vancouver adult with a 1977 Granada or a 1978 Honda Accord insured for $200,000 third party liability, $100 collision deductible and $50 comprehensive deductible, and who drives to work, paid $333 with a two-year discount this year and will pay $317 in 1979.

The same person living in Victoria would pay $190 next year compared with $198 in 1978; $257 from $272 this year in Campbell River; $236 in 1979 compared with $255 in Chilliwack; $240 compared with $256 in Kelowna; and $308 compared with $334 in 1978 in Prince George.

If that person lived in Vancouver and did not qualify for the safe-driving discount either year he would pay $414 in 1978 and will pay $25 more next year.

With the same coverage and a two-year accident-free record, a single male driver under 25, living in Vancouver and getting the 25 per cent rebate, would pay $596 next year compared with $650 now. In Powell River the rate would be $485 next year compared with $521 now.

A Vancouver female the same age and under the same conditions would pay $389 in 1979 compared with $402 this year. Living in Penticton, she would pay $298 compared with $302 in 1978.

All Set for FLQ Exiles

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques and Louise Cossette-Trudel, former members of the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) who have been in exile for eight years, return here Wednesday to face charges of kidnapping a British trade official.

Two Quebec provincial police officers are to escort the Cossette-Trudels from Paris on a regular Air Canada flight which arrives at Mirabel International Airport at noon.

They are to be arrested at the airport by Montreal police and taken immediately to headquarters downtown where they will be questioned in connection with the kidnapping in 1970 of former British trade commissioner James Cross.

The Cossette-Trudels "likely will appear in court the day after their arrival" and will face charges of conspiracy to kidnap, kidnapping, forcible detention and attempted extortion, police said.

Special travel papers for them, issued by the Canadian embassy in Paris, provide a guarantee to France that no problems will be encountered at the border. The documents also ease boarding and identification procedures.

External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson told the Commons Monday that the decision to issue the travel documents reflects his view that the Cossette-Trudels should be allowed to return if they want to.

Police said two officers travelling with them is necessary because French authorities have asked for assurance that the Cossette-Trudels will be granted admission to Canada and not turned back at the border and ordered to return to France.

The Cossette-Trudels and three other FLQ members were allowed to fly to Cuba following the safe release of Cross who was held for 59 days.

The couple lived until 1974 in Cuba, where the exiled FLQ members were put to work cutting sugar cane and working on a hospital construction project. Then they moved to France which agreed to accept them under the condition that they refrain from political activity.

The Children of Poverty

Everyone knows that nobody starves to death in Canada any more, that the advent of the welfare system means that even the most unemployable will receive a basic income sufficient to meet their fundamental needs. Right?

Not so, according to a recent study conducted by the United Way of the Lower Mainland which compared the cost of those fundamental needs in Greater Vancouver with the amounts available to B.C. welfare recipients.

The results of the study, which must truly be described as horrifying, show that many people on welfare are receiving less than half the amount they would need to reach the poverty line, that a high proportion of recipients are condemned to living in substandard housing, and that payments for food are so low that "the threat of protracted malnutrition remains a reality for larger families."

The study certainly does not appear to display any bias which would tend to make the picture grimmer than it really is. Indeed, in computing the costs of basic needs for welfare families, it does not include such items as household operations, furnishings, school needs for children or recreation — all items which the rest of us take for granted and for which some allowance is usually made in calculating the poverty line.

Instead, the United Way used only the utterly essential items of shelter (including utilities), food, clothing, personal care and transportation in defining the basic needs. These items generally brought the total essential cost for various-sized family groups in the study to somewhere between 65 per cent and 101 per cent of the poverty line cost, as assessed by various federal agencies.

The welfare cheque for the average recipient is divided into two parts — shelter and support — and the study shows both fall far short of meeting minimum needs.

For instance, in the shelter part, it was found that for single recipients, the shelter allowance now available ($75 per month) is $13 per month less than the average rent cost for even a house-keeping room, many of which in Vancouver have been found to be grossly substandard. A family of three, even if they cram into a one-bedroom apartment, find themselves facing a rent bill on average $33.92 more than their shelter allowance.

The situation is no better in examining the "support" part of the welfare cheque, which is supposed to provide for all the recipient's other needs. The study found that in all families with two children or more — and many smaller families as well — "the basic support falls short of the actual food costs of clients and their families during the first four months" on welfare. This means that even if not one cent is spent on transport, clothing or anything else, these families will still not be able to afford proper balanced meals throughout the month. Increases that occur in welfare rates after a family has been on the rolls for four months improve the position, but for families with four children or more, there still is not enough money to provide a balanced diet.

The study discovered also that an increasing proportion of the welfare caseload, especially the long-term caseload, is composed of families with children, particularly single-parent families. More than half the persons now supported through welfare in Greater Vancouver are children — children that no definition of "deserving" or "undeserving poor" can make anything but innocent victims of their parents' poverty.

In a province as rich as B.C., we can find no political or economic excuse that would justify the continuation of policies damaging these children to lives of overcrowding, of lack of opportunity, even hunger.

Lab Closure

The closure of the Theta Electrodiagnostic Laboratory should be of great concern to all. Operated by Dr. R. M. Peet and his associate neurologists in their office near the Royal Jubilee Hospital, the laboratory has provided good electroencephalogram service for many years. The quality of work, economic efficiency and highest ethical standards are beyond reproach.

The technical performance of the procedure is now transferred to the electrodiagnostic department at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. The same doctors are ordering and interpreting the tests for the same fees. It is now clear that this great out-patient load thrust upon the hospital is disruptive. Major equipment purchases, increased staffing requirements, and operating costs appear to greatly exceed the Theta Laboratory in financial burden to the public. Efficient same-day service for out-of-town patients has disappeared and service to hospital patients is compromised. In fact, the present situation in the department can be politely described as a shambles. In this day of severe budget constraints on overloaded hospitals why is this unnecessary burden placed upon the Royal Jubilee Hospital?

A reason given is that private laboratories are a source of self-referred work and that the government is going to put a stop to it. In this circumstance EEGs are an integral part of a neurologist's work, and if the test is needed it will be done, in either a private or public laboratory. There is no abuse, as the reason infers. Doctors are increasingly blamed and accused on all sorts of matters. It should be remembered that the vast majority of doctors are honest, are very concerned about rising costs, and are primarily preoccupied with the welfare of their patients.

Another reason given is that priority for providing service should go to the public rather than private facilities. This is utter nonsense. Hospitals are for hospital patients. When hospitals are overcrowded and overloaded in so many ways, then hobbled with budget cuts and restraints, what is the sense of unnecessarily sending more out-patients to them? Where does this line of reasoning end? Are all private diagnostic laboratories and x-ray offices to be closed? Will general practitioners, specialists, physiotherapists, dentists be moved into hospitals? Leave the hospitals for the hospital patients and let the private sector look after the rest. When a professional man's practice depends upon his quality of work and his profit from his efficiency of operation he will always do the best job.

This is the principle of free enterprise which is the foundation of the present Social Credit government. So why does the socialistic heel come down so hard on Theta Laboratory? — G. S. Cameron, M.D., 324-1964 Fort Street.

Royal Flush

The shuffling of the deck of cabinet cards has just taken place in the mystical, malevolent land of Bigot's Columbia. Yes, the local government has adopted the federal technique of rearranging the deck chairs on the government Titanic in hopes of stopping the inevitable collision with the iceberg of electoral reality.

No more will Willy be able to trump the poor for now they will be handled Gracefully by the queen of heartlessness. The environment will now be tended to by Reap More, the ace dealer of Cariboo land. The aforementioned Willy shall be trying to play a straight with the municipalities. (We'll lose our shirts at tax time.) Yet some things remain the same. Even the jackal of diamonds will control the purse strings and Pat will still give funds "in spades" to the private school while "clubbing" the public schools down to their core. Similarly the joker will keep the premier's pew.

Let's hope the electorate will help them all cash in their chips and give them the Royal Flush next trip to the polls. — R. C. Cameron, 1066 Chesterfield Road.

Xmas and Drinking

Are you dreading Christmas and the holiday season? If you live in a home where there is a drinking problem, it is likely that you are. Instead of anticipating a happy time with family and friends, you will be worrying among other things, about plans that will be made but not carried out; of promises that will undoubtedly be broken, and of the ensuing disappointment and embarrassment to your children and family as a whole. The Christmas season is a sad, lonely, miserable time for the family of an alcoholic. We know, we've been there!

Al-Anon can help you at this particular time too. Here is what one member says about the program: "I eagerly opened this surprise package Al-Anon offered me and this is what I found in it — that I had not caused my husband to drink. (This lifted a load of uncertainty and guilt from my mind.) That I had no control over his drinking. (So I stopped trying to control.) That I have a life which must be lived, regardless of whether he drank or not. (This helped me to fill my time and my mind with more rewarding activities and thoughts.) That I had not been fair to my children in wasting time and energy worrying instead of spending it in making them happy. That my salvation is in my hands, not my husband's. That the world is full of people with problems like mine who are learning in Al-Anon to live a good life, whether or not there is sobriety in the home.

And above all, that I wasn't quite as perfect as I'd thought I was."

This package can be yours too. What better gift could you give your family this Christmas than the knowledge that by changing our own attitudes, we have the power to change our lives for the better.

In Victoria there are 21 groups including three Alateen and one male group meeting weekly. If you would like more information about the Al-Anon family group, don't hesitate to call 382-0741 — Al-Anon Family Committee, Victoria.

About the Moonies

I was appalled to read in the papers a story from Coburg, Ont. a Canadian Press article titled A Moonie Retreat and to see that a Rev. Martin Porter, a spokesman for the group, stated the association promotes interdenominational discussion by operating workshops.

We recently came from California to Victoria to make our home. We used to live not too far from where the Moonies had their first "retreat." After about one year the people of California began writing various officials, in Washington, D.C., to get Rev. Sun Myung Moon returned to Korea. There are many lawsuits pending against him and his organization and many parents and relatives have tried to have their children or other relatives reprogrammed to remove the brainwashing they received with the Moonies.

We have all read what happened with the People's Temple people and believe me, the Moonies are a very similar group. In talking with some of the reporters who visited with the parents of children whom they tried to get returned to a normal society, they seem to be preparing for a drastic change of lifestyle very similar to the dark ages.

Please, Canada, take a lesson from the Jonestown affair and stop this before it takes hold. We like your country, your way of life and especially the people here, so it is in all sincerity that I write this warning to you. — C.A.J., Victoria.

No Wonder

This is to express my disgust and indignation to the ailing Victoria Symphony Society.

We bought tickets to the society's Karen Kain and Frank Augustyn ballet two months ago. The ballet as advertised and as printed in our tickets was to be held at the Royal Theatre on Dec. 3 at 2:30 p.m. When we arrived at the Royal Theatre we joined a lineup of kids only to find out what we are about to see was a Disney film. They moved the ballet to the University Centre. There was absolutely no notice of change in front of the theatre, nor was there any newspaper nor radio announcement of the change.

When we arrived at the University Centre, we as well as lots and lots of other people were not allowed to go in as the performance had already started (we were late not through our fault), only available seats at the back of the stage (we paid for reserved seats), and there was no printed program of the performance. It's just maddening.

If this is the way the Victoria Symphony Society handles their program and treats their patrons, there is no wonder why they are on the verge of bankruptcy. — Mrs. E. Geminiano, 987 Carolwood Drive.

What Prophet?

Some commentators on the Jonestown massacre have reacted with horror and amazement because mothers killed their children at the behest of the Prophet Jones.

I have not read how many children's corpses were among the 914 in Guyana — but somewhere I saw that 1,100 children were aborted in Victoria last year. What "prophet", what "religious frenzy" influenced those mothers? Or were their decisions cool, balanced, and business-like?

The children, whether in Jonestown or the Jubilee hospital, probably don't care much. They're all equally dead, equally denied their human rights under the United Nations Declaration which says that "the child... needs special safeguards and care, including appropriate legal protection, before as well as after birth" (emphasis mine).

I hope that nobody will claim that I deny women the right to control their own bodies. No, unlike some people, I feel that is a basic right for all women — including quite young ones, like the approximately 550 unborn women denied their right to life in the hospitals of Victoria last year. — M. New Problems for Nfld. Seal Hunt

By CLAUDE ADAMS

WASHINGTON — The Canadian government's fierce resolve to damn world opinion and continue with the Newfoundland seal hunt is facing its toughest test as American critics take aim at a crucial target: the tourist dollar.

Ottawa has good reason to worry about this new strategy. In past years, anti-seal hunt campaigns followed a predictable pattern — a blitz of letters and postcards, marches on Canadian embassies and consulates, and isolated confrontations before the assembled press on the ice floes off the east coast.

The universal howl would arise in January or February as the Newfoundlanders were sharpening their hakapiks, Ottawa would trot out its studies and its academics to show that the hunt was humane and necessary, and a few celebrities would appear in press photos cuddling baby seals.

Critics Wiser

Canadian officialdom would hunker down for a few weeks and politely answer letters, while dispatching the RCMP to the ice floes to make sure that the only violence perpetrated was that by man against beast.

But all that is over. The critics are wiser and the issues are in sharper focus. Led by Cleveland Amory, a writer and conservationist with a wide following, the Fund for Animals has called on American tourists to stay away from Canada, the land of seal-slayers and stubborn bureaucrats.

Both Amory in New York and his staff in Washington say that the mail they are getting, in huge volumes, is highly supportive.

Ottawa has always seemed to underestimate the depth of feeling in the U.S. about the hunt but now, for the first time, hundreds of thousands of Americans have been shown an effective way to demonstrate their outrage.

"If Canada wants to make this a dollars-and-cents issue by pleading on behalf of the Newfoundland fisherman," said a fund official in Washington, "then we'll make it one too by urging tourists to stay away."

In an interview from New York, Amory said the boycott is only the first in a series of possible actions his group will take if Canada remains intransigent.

Meanwhile, the fund is working with other groups to choke off the markets for seal pelts in England, France and Germany. (The U.S. already prohibits the importation of products derived from marine mammals less than eight months old when they are slain).

"Canada would make a great mistake," he said, "if it thought we were reaching only the so-called animal-lovers. There are people out there with a strong sense of underdogness, of right-and-wrong, who will be with us."

The 200,000-member fund learned the clout of mass mailing in a recent campaign on behalf of dolphins, who were being slaughtered in the hundreds of thousands by American tuna fishermen. Enough pressure was brought to bear on the White House and the tuna industry to bring about a sliding annual quota on dolphin kills, backed by law.

Amory got the idea for the campaign earlier this year, when Newfoundland Premier Frank Moores led a delegation of Canadians on a pro-hunt public relations tour through the U.S. and Europe.

"The only person who should be allowed to criticize the seal hunt," the premier said at the time, "is an unwashed vegetarian in a nudist camp."

That and other postures struck a raw nerve in Amory and other Americans involved in wildlife preservation. A further impetus was a new Canadian policy, aimed at journalists and protesters, to screen carefully anyone wishing to visit the site of the hunt.

Ottawa's biggest mistake, however, was to stick out its jaw and tell the world, in effect, that the seal hunt was strictly a Canadian affair and other nations had no business meddling in its sovereign affairs.

The international debate over the killing of harp seal cubs (or as Premier Moores prefers to call it, a "seal fishery") is no longer served by the persistent Canadian claims that the method of killing is humane, and that the size of the herd would have to be trimmed anyway, even if there were no hunt.

Nor is there much validity in the "cuteness" argument, which holds that opposition to the hunt would be minimal if the baby seal were less attractive.

As one fund spokesman said: "We're just as concerned about the fate of the alligator, and there's nothing cute about him."

No amount of public relations by Ottawa can diminish the gut impact of photographs or television news briefs showing the seal hunters speiking their prey with hooked poles, sometimes with the mother seal watching.

It is a brutal and galling sight, not at all mitigated by numbers on a graph and the testimony of experts that death comes swiftly.

Neither the government nor the grizzled Newfoundland sea captains can cope with the emotions that these images generate.

Equally perplexing to the Americans is the economics of the hunt, a $5.5-million industry that may yet cost Canada tens of millions in tourist dollars, not to mention the inestimable impact of international ill-feeling.

"Canada probably spends more than that just defending the hunt," Amory said.

What Motivation?

Where the seal hunt critics go wrong, however, is their facile assessments of what motivates the Newfoundlanders.

"They feel it makes them more of a person," Amory said. "It's almost a Spanish macho thing, as they recall how they worked from small boats, without radar, in treacherous weather."

"And now they are watching as a part of their heroic past is being wrenched away from them by nature-loving writers and celebrities."

Such casual psychoanalysis won't win Amory and his people any support among Canadians, let alone on the Newfoundland ice. But that is not really important.

Ottawa will soon have to face the larger question of whether the price it is paying on the world stage to protect "its" hunt is really worth it. Something has to give, and both history and common sense suggest that Canada ultimately will have to back down.

Quebec's 'Saviour' May be Wrong Man

MONTREAL — There was jubilation last April when Claude Ryan, 53, won the leadership of the Quebec Liberal Party.

English Canada heaved a sigh of relief and slept a little better for here, at last, was the Great White Hope who would do what Pierre Trudeau could not — put to rest Rene Levesque and his separatists; the man who would restore the integrity of the Liberal Party and clean up its tarnished image.

Federalists cheered. The press pursued him and his collected writings were published. Never before was so much expected by so many of a Quebec opposition leader.

Within a month Ryan surpassed Trudeau as well as Levesque in the popularity polls.

The Liberals had someone who could figure out the constitutional issues and find a solution somewhere between Trudeau's federalism and Levesque's sovereignty-association and still keep Quebec in Canada.

They congratulated themselves and put themselves in Ryan's hands.

And now, less than a year later, the awful truth is beginning to dawn. They may have picked the wrong man. For more than a decade as editor and publisher of the influential Le Devoir, Claude Ryan was Quebec's foremost journalist. He made a career of being able to see both sides of an issue, dishing out blame and merit as it was due.

Premiers consulted him almost daily. He gave them advice freely and they often planned their policies around what he told them.

Then, late last year, he gave it all up for a higher calling, a mission to save Canada. He would do as a politician what he felt he could not do as a journalist.

Since he's become leader, Ryan has embarked on an odyssey across Quebec that has taken him to hundreds of cities, towns and parishes. Day after day, 10 to 18 hours at a time, he plodded from place to place, from meeting to meeting, sometimes driving himself in the family car, and always paying his respects to the local weekly editor in every community he visited.

Big crowds, small crowds, Claude Ryan played them all this past summer, speaking as many as 12 times a week, making the same arguments over and over.

RICHARD CLEROUX

He still carries his old reporter's black notebook and he looks as uncomfortable as ever in the three-piece suits his new job has made him wear.

He can't make a speech to save his soul and when he appears on Quebec television, the ratings of the U.S. stations go up.

Among a generation of slick, glib Liberal politicians — the last Liberal leader even had his own coiffeur to keep his hair straight — the straight-talking Ryan with all his high moral principles, Roman Catholic rigidity, over-bearing righteousness and schoolmasterish approach stands out as incongruous.

Now the Liberals are grumbling because Ryan did not make his mark right

His critics say he is slow to react, not fiery enough, too often gives credit where it is due to the government, and is still too likely to analyze a situation rather than take advantage of it.

To them, he's still too much of a journalist and not enough of a politician.

Ryan has heard them and is trying to change. Earlier last month, he realized he'd have to be critical of the PQ of its second anniversary in power, so he prepared a snappy, biting, 60-second speech which he rhymed off for any reporter who wanted it.

It was nothing but criticism of the PQ — so unlike Ryan the journalist.

Later he explained somewhat philosophically:

"The logic of our political system divides the work between those who exercise power and those who have the responsibility to criticize until it is their turn to exercise power."

"That logic requires that you be somewhat merciless in your criticism knowing full well that there is an ample number of people who will charge themselves with seeing the good side."

"As a journalist, I used to see both sides. But I know that if I say something good today about the PQ, a journalist will take it out of context and a big headline will shout: Ryan Approves of PQ."

The polls show that Ryan has peaked and lost his momentum. Levesque passed him in the last poll and leads 37 per cent to 30 per cent.

Today the Liberals and PQ are neck and neck, 35 per cent points apiece with 18 per cent undecided.

The only thing keeping the Liberals up with the PQ right now is the Liberals' anglophone vote. And given the current demographic trends in Quebec, that's not the area of support any party should bank on for the long term.

Ryan has also reorganized the Liberal Party, from the ground up, but many of the old Liberal guard have refused to work for him and others are withholding their support until they see how he pans out.

They made their money during the good old days in power. Today many of them are more interested in making it with the new bunch in power rather than side with the outsider Ryan "who wasn't even a Liberal until he was offered the leadership" and doesn't play politics their way anyway.

'Mean Generation' Runs on Envy

dard based on historical or global comparisons — extremely rich.

(2) Our middle classes are desperately unhappy with their position in life. They believe that government, far from helping them, has damaged them, through cruel taxation and other means. They also believe they have been cheated by other parts of society, notably the poor.

In the recent local elections in Toronto, David Lewis Stein detected what he called "bitter, selfish ideas" beginning to surface. There were aldermanic candidates who came up with preposterously narrow positions, such as the notion that people who don't have children shouldn't be taxed for education — and they were applauded.

This isn't limited to Toronto. Douglas Fisher noted a few months ago that across Canada, "the economic troubles of the country are increasingly laid to bad government leadership and (among other things) an over-extensive set of educational, health and welfare systems."

The health-care system of Canada, whatever its flaws, is one of the great accomplishments of our social order, and our education system is another. Yet it has now become commonplace to say that we have gone too far with them, they cost too much, they are "soaking" the taxpayers, etc.

In the recent Toronto Rosedale by-election, canvassers noted — according to a report by Christina McCall Newman — that the voters in the best districts, with the best houses, were the loudest in their complaints about the government. This accords with my own observation: Those who benefit most by the system also resent it most.

Doctors, for instance, who have been made rich by government health-care, tell me that taxes are driving them out of the country. They may have to move to Houston to make a decent living. Then they go off to their beautiful houses in their expensive cars, or sail their lovely boats, or get on the plane to ski in Europe. They aren't aware, perhaps never will be aware, of the comedy that lies in the contrast between what they say and what they are.

It will do you no good to tell such people that they've never had it so good; that's probably true, but it doesn't help. Middle-class resentment isn't based on logic. It's based, so far as I can tell, on envy.

For some people, envy is the only belief-system left. Envy provides a reason to work, a reason to achieve, and a reason to get mad — all things that religion or the family once gave us. Envy fuels the energy of the truly ambitious.

Toronto Star

away, did not become the snappy, stick-it-to-them, kind of leader they rejected last spring.

Some say the referendum is no longer the big issue in Quebec. The Parti Quebecois has watered down the referendum so much that the acid test for Quebec's future will be the next provincial election.

And the Liberals find themselves stuck with a referendum fighter when what they really need is an election fighter.

"Il l'a pas" (He ain't got it) they say in the Liberal Party. The grumblings could break into open revolt at any time. Last weekend in Longueuil Ryan publicly warned party members who don't like the orientation he has given the party that they should either stay home or join some other party rather than try to sabotage him from inside.

The Way of the Wrinkle

The man and woman behind us at the theatre were talking about a friend who was reluctant to have her face lifted. "She'd made all the arrangements and then cancelled at the last minute," said the woman.

"She's already starting to wrinkle bad," said the man. His voice carried authority. He must have been a professional, a man who understood wrinkling and knew what it could do to a face. He sounded worried.

"She says she'll get it done next year," the woman said. The man obviously didn't believe it. There was resignation in his voice. "She'll never get it done," he said. "She's just going to go ahead and wrinkle. Let's watch the show."

He had washed his hands of this foolish woman who voluntarily doomed herself to wrinkling. She deserved nothing but contempt. I sat staring at the frail fiction on the stage, but my mind filled with pictures of a woman sitting alone at a phone that never rang because she refused to submit her face to the scalpel.

A swirl of taut-skinned beautiful people of indeterminate age was off on the town in a bustle of furs and exposed chest hair and one of them asked, "Whatever became of old Nellie?" And someone replied, "Would you believe it — she chose to become a wrinkler."

My sensitivity to this case arises from recent exposure to people from Southern California, much of whose conversation deals with who has just had what done to his or her face by whom. The first thing people do on arriving out there is to buy a Mercedes-Benz and the second is to get a face lift.

A New York woman tells of meeting a California man at a party, having a long discussion, then asking another woman for his name. It turned out to be a man she had known for years —

russell baker

let's say his name was Bill. "That's not Bill," she protested. "I've known Bill since Hector was a pup."

"Sure," said the other woman, "but the Bill you knew is all up there on the back of his skull now."

California, as we know, is the wave of the future. Having the eyes "done," tucking the chin and taking a mortgage to buy a Mercedes have already been taken up in New York. Just the other day I saw my first stretched Mercedes parked on East 58th Street. Between front and rear seat, space had been added for two baths and a dining room. How much longer can a man go on the streets wrinkled without becoming a pariah?

I had been worrying this question before overhearing that conversation at the theatre. Nobody had actually come right out and said, "You're wrinkling," but I had become sensitive to a certain coolness lately among the kind of women who pass inspection at Studio 54 and men who wear lavaliers instead of neckties.

Though most of these persons look young enough to be Ringo Starr's children, many of them have been around since Melvin Purvis trapped John Dillinger. Lately I have noticed that when I go to their parties, the evening is sedate until my departure, whereupon, standing outside on the street, I can hear gales of released jollity and the roar of hijinks and indiscretion.

Have they been waiting for me to leave so they can have a good time? If so, why? They remember the same things I do — Melvin Purvis getting Dillinger, Franklin Roosevelt swamping Alf Landon, nickel candy. What depresses them, I think, is the sight of me relentlessly wrinkling right before their eyes. Eyes that have been "done."

I have considered facial improvements, but am not certain wrinkle removal qualifies as such. For a long time I was smooth of face and thoroughly unhappy about it. Until I was 30 years old, bartenders demanded documentary evidence that I was of legal drinking age and bus drivers still called me "Sonny." At that time I wanted to wrinkle, and fast, and I wanted it with the same passion with which people nowadays want to unwrinkle overnight.

This is not why I remain reluctant to surrender my hard-earned seams to a plastic surgeon. The central question is whether the smooth mug is here to stay or just another fashion flash in the reorganized pan. My history of not catching up with new trends until they are out-of-date began with saving for an Orphan Annie mug when everybody else had moved on to Dick Tracy decoders and continued just recently with buying a suit with flared cuffs and tight legs when everybody else has moved on to tight cuffs and flared legs.

If I get an expensive new tight face it's a sure bet that the following week Jerry Brown will turn up in Malibu wearing the brand-new Miz Lillian Carter wrinkles and trying to pretend he knows John Dillinger from Henry Kissinger. This is the same reason I haven't bought pink eyeglasses.

Modular Boats Called Flexible

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Construction is slated to begin next April on a new kind of boat which uses modular components for special functions.

Guildfords Ltd. of Dartmouth will build the boats under contract to CBLC Ltd. for use by Environment Canada.

The prototype will be have sections which can be taken off or added to the basic hull structure to suit specific needs.

It is expected that this feature will allow the environment department to use the boat in both shallow and deep water.

Guildfords president Tom Guildford said the design is "fairly new technology" that will be primarily used for weed control in clogged but navigable waterways.

The boat, destined for use in Third World countries that need multi-purpose craft, would also be helpful in emergency situations, such as flood evacuations.

The boat can be disassembled, flown by helicopter, to where it is needed and reassembled on site.

Components will also be light enough to allow container shipping by land, sea or air.

Guildfords was given the contract by CBLC, formerly Canadian British Consultants Ltd., because of the Dartmouth firm's experience in building fiberglass and fiberglass-reinforced plastic in boat building.

CBLC vice-president Jim Axell suggested in an interview the unit could also be used to produce in-place water structures for civil engineering projects, because units will be designed so that no lifting equipment will be required for assembly.

NO NEED to say "Hold it!" This truck stolen from a Miami bottling company certainly wasn't about to go anywhere, and the photographer had lots of time to shoot. It was not known whether the vandals were injured when they drove through the wall.

Man Cut From Car Wreckage

Two men are in fair condition in hospital after a car crashed into a power pole on Burnside on Monday.

Saanich police said driver Ian Harrison, 24, of 494 Walter, had to be cut from the wreckage by firemen using the mechanical Jaws of Life machine. He was taken to Royal Jubilee with a dislocated hip, broken jaw and possible internal injuries.

Passenger David Gordon Pellerin, 23, of 577 McKenzie, was taken to Victoria General Hospital with internal injuries.

The accident happened at 3:24 p.m. between Eldon and Carrol.

Apartheid Foe Doubts Value Of Sanctions

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Helen Suzman, a member of South Africa's Parliament and opponent of her country's apartheid policy, said she does not think economic pressure would influence the white-minority Pretoria government.

Economic sanctions have been demanded by many African states to force South Africa to abandon its practice of strict racial separation. Mrs. Suzman said South Africa would probably get around the sanctions and such a move would make the government more stubborn.

Find SIN Offensive? Fake it, Guay Advised

Guay wrote: "To prove their point, bank officials stated that anyone who feels strongly about providing their social insurance number can invent another number of themselves, or a number will be assigned to them by the bank."

Clark asked Finance Minister Jean Chretien to check whether this "very inventive policy" is still in effect.

Outside the Commons, Hare said it was irresponsible for the Bank of Canada to encourage use of the social insurance number as an identity card and even worse to suggest Canadians should invent their own SINs.

A Bank of Canada spokesman said purchasers of Canada savings bonds were not legally required to give their social insurance number, although it was requested.

If the person did not want to use his SIN, the bank would assign an account number, which could not be used for any other purpose. The bank would not invent or assign a social insurance number, he said.

The spokesman said customers did not make up their account numbers.

Although the social insurance number is not legally required for purchasing savings bonds, it is required for cashing them in.

Savings bond holders who do not give a social insurance number at this time have 25 per cent of the interest withheld. The interest, or part of it, may be returned after an income tax return is filed.

Conservative MPs have for months been pressing the government to restrict use of the social insurance number as an all-purpose identification card.

Law requires use of the number only for income tax returns, Canada Pension Plan and unemployment insurance but the number is used extensively in government, schools and even minor-hockey leagues to identify people.

Conservatives say this is a potential threat to individual privacy. An unscrupulous computer operator could piece together the details of someone's life from cradle to grave with his SIN. Conservatives have argued in the Commons:

Employment Minister Bud Cullen said last week the government cannot prohibit private companies or other levels of government from using the social insurance number as an identity card.

Canada-U.K. Video Call a First

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian and British officials took part today in the world's first two-way video conference call between Toronto and London, their voice and images transmitted through hair-thin glass fibres.

Jeanne Sauve, federal communications minister, told her counterparts in London that the optic fibre system, which converts electrical signals to light beams that travel through tiny glass strands, brings a terrific advantage to the telecommunications field.

The minister said it is inevitable that the use of fibre optics will be widespread in the future and will bring great benefits to the public and industrial sectors.

Her image and voice were transmitted to London as she sat at a conference table with James Snow, Ontario transportation and communications minister, A. J. de Grandpre, chairman of the board of Bell Canada, and George Finlayson, Consul General of the United Kingdom.

Among those in London to whom they spoke and listened as well as watched were Sir William Barlow, chairman of the British post office board.

James Thackray, Bell Canada president, Paul Martin, Canadian high commissioner to the United Kingdom, and Ross De Geer, agent general of Ontario House.

The day also marked the start of the two-year trial of fibre optics technology, the first field trial in the world to use residential telephones.

Bell Canada has installed two-way optical fibre voice channels in 35 subscribers' homes in the Yorkville area of downtown Toronto to test transmission during the two-year period.

The subscriber trial is a stage in the development of a fibre optics system that eventually could carry telephone messages, television and data signals into millions of homes.

Ballroom Dancers More Than Ever
Are Swirling, Twirling and Whirling And Clinching Very Definitely Is In.

It's a Touch And Go Affair

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

The Hustle and other disco moves Saturday Night Fever-inspired teenagers practise so diligently don't bear much resemblance to the ballroom dancing Fred Astaire glamorized so many years ago.

Yet the gyrations John Travolta stunned teenagers with evolved from a style of dancing their parents were doing 30 years ago.

It's called ballroom dancing and in spite of the disco craze, or maybe because of it, it's alive and well and doing better and better.

Victoria has always had a dedicated group of ballroom dancing enthusiasts, but their number is increasing, says instructor Connie O'Mar.

"Together dancing is coming back again, the trend is there," says Connie, who along with her husband runs the Victoria Ballroom Dancing Group.

It's easy to learn dance steps, says Connie, who estimates a novice pair can be dancing well in six months if they practise for a couple of hours twice a week.

Instruction levels are graded beginner, novice, pre-amateur, amateur and professional.

Most students are in the beginner category but Connie estimates there are between six and 10 couples in the intermediate classes good enough to enter in provincial competitions.

Most people who come to the O'Mar's dance group are married couples in their late 30s or older, who have raised families and now have the time for dancing.

"Some people say they've always wanted to do ballroom dancing and now they're going to have a go at it."

They start out learning the basic waltz, jive and tango because they are the easiest. That's the first category of ballroom dancing.

The second is the Latin American group of dances, which includes the Rumba, Samba, Cha Cha Cha and Jive.

It's this second group from which the free-form disco styles originated.

To learn to dance requires lots of stamina and a good pair of feet.

An ear for music helps too, says Connie, who has been witness to some heated words between beginners with mismatched ability.

When one partner has trouble picking up the beat it can be a frustrating experience for the more musically attuned spouse.

But all the dance group's students have one thing in common: they practise with incredible zeal and are determined to become good dancers.

The hard work pays off at a competition, when the glamor takes over. Then it's tails for the man and a glittery, $300 ball dress and high heel slippers for his partner.

The disco craze is still around but ballroom dancing also is flourishing here

ABRUPT END TO ARBITRATION Saanich Police Settle

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Saanich police board and the Saanich Police Association have abandoned the arbitration proceedings they launched nearly three months ago and ratified a new three-year contract effective Jan. 1, 1978.

The surprise announcement was made this morning by the board chairman, Mayor Mel Couvelier, and association president Corporal Phil Jamieson, following three days of intensive negotiations last weekend.

Saanich municipality has already incurred costs of around $10,000 on the arbitration route which has been negated by the agreement, the mayor said.

The contract, which will give Saanich police officers parity with their Lower Mainland counterparts by June 30, 1980, received 100 per cent approval by the union membership at a meeting Monday night.

Couvelier and Jamieson said it provides for a four per cent increase this year, six per cent in 1979 with a cost-of-living allowance "tripping" at the four per cent mark, and "98 per cent parity with Lower Mainland rates" by Jan. 1, 1980.

In addition, Jamieson said, one of the association's major concerns has been resolved with the board agreeing to a number of job reclassifications which will increase the supervision ratios on shifts by 33 per cent, but without promotions.

"As far as the working policeman's perspective is concerned it means that decision-making is taken to a lower level," he added.

(Police charges that the level of supervision in Saanich compares unfavorably with neighboring police forces were one of the key issues argued at length when the arbitration hearing opened in Victoria Sept. 26).

The restructuring of the department will also improve its centralized criminal investigation capability, the two spokesmen said.

After the hearing before arbitrator Dalton Larson was adjourned last September, three more days were to have been held this week and another two in January.

But Couvelier told reporters the arbitration proceedings could have dragged on even longer, "because we were going to have to devote the full five days to put our side of the case."

The municipality has already spent about $10,000 and eventual costs could have been close to $30,000, he said.

Jamieson said all the association's bills aren't in yet but it has probably spent about $3,800 on arbitration.

He credited Couvelier with taking the initiative in contacting union officials last week to renew negotiations, which occupied all day Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Asked if such agreement at a much earlier date might have saved both sides a lot of money, Jamieson said: "I prefer to look on it as an investment."

He said a relationship has now been established and a mutual awareness of each other's point of view has emerged, and those things might not have happened under different circumstances.

"We don't consider it a waste of money at all," he added.

Couvelier echoed his sentiments, saying he believes both sides now understand the importance of improving internal relationships and the department's relevancy to the community at large.

Silent Alarm Trips Up Pair

A silent alarm helped city police catch two youths suspected of breaking into the Medical Arts Centre at 1105 Pandora early today.

Police went to the building after the alarm went off at 1:10 a.m. and surprised the pair as they left by a back door.

One of the youths fled but was caught in a nearby parking lot while the second was found hiding under a parked car.

Residents Win Fight On Parking

Camosun College council Monday night decided against turning its property at Lansdowne and Foul Bay into a parking lot.

Councillors backed down in the face of hefty opposition from residents who said the lot would spoil the residential nature of the area and create a traffic hazard by congesting the intersection.

Council decided to build a parking lot on the site at a November meeting. But it was prevented from calling tenders when councillor Peter Dorazio walked out before the motion could be passed, leaving the meeting without a quorum.

Residents presented a 115-signature petition and also attended a council meeting to protest the parking plan.

Council will now build the lot on nearby property owned by the B.C. Buildings Corporation (BCBC).

Curtis Purden, chairman of the facilities committee, told council BCBC has agreed to let Camosun use three or four acres of a 15-acre parcel north of Lansdowne campus for the parking lot.

Access to the new lot would be gained through the Foul Bay Road entrance to the existing lot, he said.

Purden showed council a revised plan that contained 156 parking spaces.

The college needs a new parking area because it intends to build a multi-purpose building on an existing lot.

The lot is the first phase of a plan to place all Camosun parking on the BCBC property along Foul Bay Road.

One resident told the council he wants to see the parking lot at the corner of Foul Bay and Lansdowne because the road in front of his home, Argyle Avenue, has become a popular parking spot for students, even though no parking signs are posted on both sides of the road.

Camosun principal Grant Fisher said the college has called a meeting next week with Argyle residents to discuss the problem.

SEWAGE TREATMENT ORDERED AT LAGOON

A cabinet review committee has toughened up the provisions of a permit that will allow sewage to be dumped into Juan de Fuca Strait from a subdivision above Esquimalt Lagoon.

Health Minister Bob McClelland said today the committee decided a secondary treatment plant must be installed immediately instead of in 1981 as specified in the original permit.

The permit strictly limits the sewage system to the 70 lots in the subdivision.

The original permit which was appealed by a number of groups and individuals in the Colwood area, would have allowed raw sewage to be pumped into the sea with-out treatment until a secondary plant was built.

McClelland said he doesn't know if the Capital Regional District can meet the requirements, "but that's the only way we could possibly allow it."

He said he wants to make it clear to the CRD that there will be no housing expansion in that area allowed to tie in with the new sewer system.

The minister added the committee considered the undesirability of the proliferation of outfalls discharging to such areas and urged the CRD to seek a permanent resolution, with the object of eliminating one or the other of the outfalls through cooperation and joint effort with the federal government.

The subdivision was plagued with sewage problems almost from the day the first house was built. The ground is unsuited for septic fields and had overflowed and spilled sewage down the streets and into the lagoon which is a wild fowl sanctuary.

'Chain Saw' Very Sick Flick

The B.C. director of film classification's description of an old film is blunt to say the least.

"Extremely gruesome, disgusting picture," states the director's warning for The Texas Chain Saw Massacre, now playing at the Odeon.

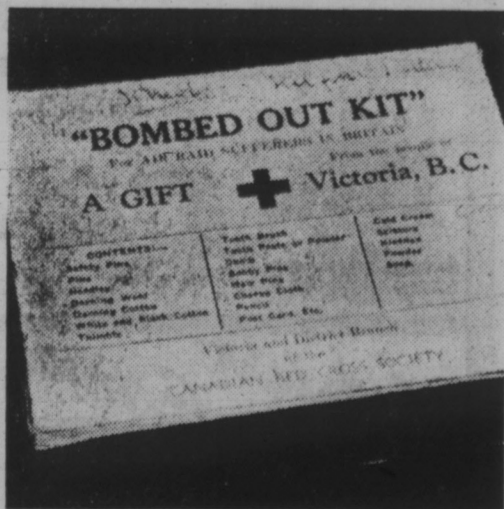

Mary-Lou McCausland said the film was reviewed before she became the director.

"That's not mine," she said. "I never had to see that movie — thank God."

But she adds that from all reports "disgusting" is just the word for describing the flick — unless you're big on seeing people cut up with a chain saw that is.

Sounds like a good Christmas movie, doesn't it?

Victoria alderman Bob Wright is one politician who knows where he's going — it's just how to get there that's so frustrating.

In a recent meeting of city council's traffic committee, Wright said that every time he tries to drive one way in Victoria, he finds himself headed in the opposite direction by one-way streets.

"If you want to go north, you go south and if you want to go east you go west," complained Wright.

"It's all a great conspiracy to get rid of the automobile!"

Anyone who hangs around the legislature knows it's not the ministers who handle the really tough situations, but their secretaries.

The secretaries suffer through the rude callers and visitors, weeding out the weirdos and diverting the dingbats.

Dorothy Sage, secretary to former human resources minister Bill Vander Zalm, says the very day

Remember When

It's a battered old cardboard box but for older folk, it will bring back memories of Vera Lynn, powdered eggs and the voice of Winston Churchill crackling in over the BBC.

The box was mailed to Town Talk by a resident of Cambridge, England, with a note saying it turned up during a clean-out of the museum of archeology there.

The box originated here in Victoria some time during the Second World War and was shipped to the U.K. by the Red Cross.

It contained a whole assortment of items blitz victims might need if they were bombed out, like safety pins, a tooth brush, scissors and other things.

Does anybody out there recall helping pack the kits?

her office switched to municipal affairs, the mail and telephone calls declined.

Dorothy wishes the best of luck to Phyllis Shandley, secretary to the new human resources minister Grace McCarthy.

Phyllis inherits the long list of regulars well known to the human resources offices and if that's not enough, she'll have to deal with all complaints about ICBC.

Did you know Premier Bill Bennett was once a Jaycee?

It's true. He admitted it at a dinner of the Pacific region Jaycees last week while being presented with an honorary life membership in the organization.

Bennett said when he was 19 he joined the Jaycees in Kelowna, but dropped out six months later.

He didn't, however, go so far as to admit being Mayor of Teetown Kelowna back about the same era.

In fact, when confronted with it later, time seems to have fogged that memory somewhat. He says he never was Teetown mayor; that he helped someone else get elected.

Others, however, with keener memories, say he was.

If somebody out there's missing a mattress, we know what happened to it.

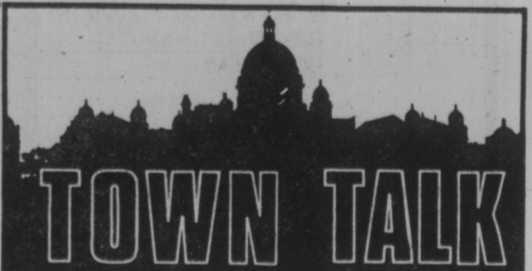

At last sighting, your mattress was lying at the side of the Trans-Canada Highway near the Thetis Lake overpass in pretty poor shape.

Well, you would be too if you'd been run over.

The mattress was hit by Victoria Press employee Mary Armstead. She was driving along and had no room to manoeuvre when the mattress loomed up on the highway ahead. With traffic to the right and a divider to the left, she had no choice.

Mary's car wound up stalled on the highway with the mattress wedged firmly underneath.

She was rescued from her predicament by five teen-agers who saw her wave for help and stopped. After some hysteria — "you ran over a what, lady?" — the young folks hauled the mattress free and Mary drove away.

Okay, who's the Willows wabbit fweak?

A Kings Road resident tells Town Talk she was busy in her kitchen one afternoon last week when she heard the back door open and close rather quickly.

On checking, she found hippety-hopping around just inside the door a cuddly fluff ball of a rabbit no more than a month old.

The little guy (gal?) apparently was deposited there by somebody systematically and stealthily getting rid of a litter.

Anybody else out there get an early Easter present?

Now Here's the Hard Way To Start Off Another Year

The very thought of it makes non-athletic types shudder but for what it's worth, the YM-YWCA has announced cheerfully (when did the organization say anything any other way?) that we think is a somewhat drastic way of starting 1979.

The Y is organizing a New Year's Day walk/jog through Beacon Hill Park to Clover Point to be followed by the pushing of a giant "Earth Ball" back to the Y.

If you can crawl out of bed and make the Y by 1 p.m., you're welcome to participate.

Biorhythms Betray Bandit

SEATTLE — A bandit with a healthy grasp of technology used $4.47 worth of someone else's computer time to check his biorhythms, say University of Washington police.

The theft was discovered when John Kisela of Seattle, a regular client with an account at the University of Washington computer centre, called to complain that he was unable to get the computer's attention.

Centre consultant Michael Dority found that a biorhythm program was being run on the account. After a search, he and Wallace discovered a man running such a program in a room of the computer centre building.

Tanar Ulrich, 18, of Seattle was cited for theft of services.

The centre's accounting department, which says an hour of the computer's time costs about $400, calculated the $4.47 figure.

BOSTON — Boston Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler was in fair condition at Tufts New England Medical Centre early today after brain surgery aimed at helping the 83-year-old conductor walk.

Fiedler underwent a "limited neurosurgical procedure" for about an hour Monday night, a hospital spokesman said.

AUSTIN, Tex. — Sam Houston Johnson, who lived in the large shadow cast by his brother Lyndon B. Johnson and gained some notoriety for his frank criticism of the late U.S. president, died of lung cancer Monday.

Johnson, 64, was five years younger than Lyndon, who suffered a fatal heart attack in 1973.

PICKLE LAKE, Ont. — Lester Wolfe of Silverdale, Wash., left today on the first stretch of his 6,500-kilometre, twin-track snowmobile expedition to Fairbanks, Alaska.

Wolfe expects to meet Dave Harmon, 25, of Churchill, Man., in Manitoba and Harmon will accompany him for the remainder of the journey.

Swamped By Tories

HARTFORD — The Connecticut Supreme Court has ruled a 20-pound, gilded lead fragment from a statue of King George III belongs to the owner of the Davis Swamp in Wilton, Conn., not the man who found it and sold it to a museum.

Patriots hacked apart the statue July 9, 1776, for casting into bullets. They later got drunk, whereupon loyalist Tories rescued some fragments and scattered them in the swamp.

Dear Santa, Buzz Off

ROCKY MOUNT, Va. — Claude J. Hodges agrees with the fictional Ebenezer Scrooge about Christmas being humbug.

"Christmas is just a big gimmick," he said. "People get in debt buying presents and spend all the rest of the year trying to pay their bills."

Hodges has told his family that this year he won't be giving any Christmas presents — and he doesn't want to receive any.

Hodges, a 55-year-old carpenter, says he is serious and to prove it, he took out an advertisement in a Franklin County newspaper under a small headline reading, "Attention in-laws and out-laws the same: Concerning Christmas, I don't need nothin', I don't want nothin' and for sure I'm not buying nor givin' nothin'."

"Every year I tell them not to get me anything, but they just keep on doing it," he said. "Now I've got all kinds of stuff still wrapped up in my drawers — gloves, handkerchiefs, socks, ties and shirts."

Before the Judge

A preliminary hearing into a charge of conspiracy to import marijuana against 17 persons went into its third week Monday in provincial court here before Judge Reg Moir of Kelowna.

Fifteen men and two women are charged in connection with the seizure of 13 tons of Colombian marijuana off the west coast of Vancouver Island on July 15. The operation involved between 600 and 700 Canadian Armed Forces personnel, two Canadian warships, and police from Canada and the U.S.

The hearing has been scheduled for six weeks but sources outside the courtroom indicate it may end as early as this week.

A 54-year-old man charged with possession of a prohibited weapon — tear gas cannisters — was remanded in custody until today for bail hearing and election of trial method.

Warren Albert Huras, also known as Ryan Wayne Regan, no fixed address, was charged after city police found a quantity of tear gas in the trunk of a car with Colorado licence plates on Friday.

Crown counsel asked Judge Blake Allan for one day to check into Huras' background.

A 20-year-old with what Allan described as a "nasty record for a young man of your age" was handed a 60-day jail term for shoplifting.

Ian Ralston Dunsmuir, 252 Gorge Road East, was found guilty of theft under $200 following a trial Nov. 15. Dunsmuir was charged with taking a shirt from Eaton's.

Allan noted that Dunsmuir was convicted of breaking and entering on four occasions: Oct. 11, 1974; July 28, 1975; Aug. 8, 1975; and Aug. 19, 1977. He received suspended sentences and two years' probation on the first and last dates, nine months in jail for the first 1975 conviction, and nine months definite, six months indeterminate for the second 1975 conviction.

An 18-year-old who broke windows valued at $121.07 Sept. 6 in Sidney was fined $50 and ordered to pay for the damages.

Stephen Bennett Carter, 205 Almond in Sidney, pleaded guilty to mischief causing wilful damage.

Mulligan told the court Carter broke the windows at 9386 Maryland Drive and told RCMP his family had lived there before but were asked to move.

A Quebec youth who recently was released from Wilkison Road jail apparently celebrated his freedom by damaging his hotel room.

Robert Bourdon, 19, pleaded guilty to mischief causing wilful damage and Mulligan entered stays of proceeding against two others.

Court was informed city police were called to the Dominion Hotel, 759 Yates, Saturday afternoon. Bourdon and two others were found in a third-floor room which was damaged: Mulligan said Bourdon was drunk and did $43.89 damage to the doorway and fixtures in the room.

Bourdon and two others were convicted on Oct. 31 of possession of housebreaking instruments and were given 60 days each.

Use of Bugs, Wiretaps Increase

An RCMP report says police use of electronic surveillance in B.C. was up slightly in 1977.

It says 82 police applications to use electronic listening devices were granted compared to 72 in 1976 and 83 in 1975. Information acquired in wiretaps and buggings was used as evidence in 27 criminal proceedings last year.

The figures were contained in the RCMP's annual report on the protection of privacy provisions of the Criminal Code.

Extra Carillon Concerts Set for Festive Season

Christmas and New Year recitals will be performed by provincial carillonneur Herman Bergink at the Centennial Carillon on Belleville Street from now until the end of the year.

The recitals are in addition to the regular 3 p.m. Sunday carillon concerts.

Two guest carillonneurs, John Barkett of Seattle, and Tobias Yenney of Victoria, have been invited to give the recitals on Thursday and Friday, respectively. Yenney will also perform on Friday, Dec. 22.

The extra recitals are:

today, 5 p.m.; Wednesday, 7 p.m.; Thursday, 12:30 p.m.; Friday, 5 p.m.; Saturday, 1 p.m.; Sunday, Dec. 17, 3 p.m.; Monday, 7 p.m.; Tuesday, 12:45 p.m.; Wednesday, 10 a.m.; Thursday, 11:45 a.m.; Friday, 4:30 p.m.; Saturday, noon; Sunday, Dec. 24, 3 p.m.; Monday, Christmas Day, 3 p.m.; Tuesday, noon; Sunday, New Year's Eve, 11:45 p.m.

At midnight New Year's the recital will be interrupted by tolling of the bells. This will be followed with the playing of familiar tunes.

On New Year's Day the concert will start at noon.

Winnipeg Firm Buys Rest Of Panco Poultry from B.C.

The provincial government's remaining holdings in Panco Poultry have been sold to a Winnipeg firm for $3.3 million, Agriculture Minister Cyril Shefford said Monday.

Cargill Grain Co. has obtained the Fraser Valley processing plant and hatchery — part of the Panco system since the NDP purchased the entire operation — for $5 million.

The Social Credit government earlier sold the operation's turkey farms, broiler farms and feed mill for more than $8 million.

The ministry said Cargill intends to make a substantial investment in the operation to expand its markets.

Panco produces about 35 per cent of the poultry grown in B.C., and has made a profit since the government purchased it.

Where else could you get so many dreams for a nickel?

Remember the days when grease was something you put on your hair, not something you saw at the movies?

Those were the good old days when you could make a phone call for a nickel. When it was cool to sit over a soda after a hard day at school and listen to Buddy Holly singing "Peggy Sue" on the jukebox. When you wore the same clothes as everyone else. Stove-pipe jeans, tee shirt and leather jacket for him. Pedal pushers, angora sweaters and reversible skirts for her.

Those were also the days when you were rich if you were earning $10,000 a year by the time you were thirty. It doesn't seem like big money now, but back then it was more than enough to buy that first house. It's hard to believe that a bungalow with a white picket fence and garden went for under $15,000.

Things are different these days. The jukebox is as quaint as an old 78 rpm record. Now it's strobe lights and discos and dress as you please. That three bedroom bungalow has gone up to $55,000 or more. Even though your salary has kept up with those higher prices, it still takes good money management to put together that all-important down payment. That's where we can help. With a Royal Trust Registered Home Ownership Savings Plan. A Royal Trust RHOSP lets you save for your home with tax-free dollars — up to $1,000 each year until you've deposited $10,000. You can take up to 20 years to deposit your $10,000 limit, but you can withdraw your savings any time before that.

That's not all. Your money will earn interest in your choice of two Royal Trust investment programs specially designed for RHOSP savings.

If you already have a RHOSP and are thinking of buying a home, now's the time to talk to us about it. Among other things, we're Canada's leading realtor, so we won't just be helping you make the most of your RHOSP; we can also be helping you choose the home you want to buy and where you want to buy it.

Royal Trust. Building more than memories.

Eagleson Threat Puzzles CAHA Boss

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Renwick said today he's surprised and puzzled by Alan Eagleson's threat to cancel the 1979 Canada Cup hockey tournament because of obstruction by Renwick.

Renwick is president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) and Eagleson is Hockey Canada's chief negotiator for professional-level international hockey exchanges.

In a press conference Monday, Eagleson accused Renwick and the CAHA of going back on their word that they would approve a Hockey Canada agreement reached last June that gave Eagleson the authority to negotiate a cycle of international events.

The cycle of events, negotiated at the International Ice Hockey Federation meetings last summer, included Canada Cup tournaments in 1979 and 1982, Canadian involvement in the 1979, 1981 and 1982 world championships, and the 1980 Olympics.

Renwick, in a telephone interview from his Cambridge, Ont., office, said today that the CAHA, in the last meeting with Eagleson a week ago, was prepared to ratify the June agreement but with the stipulation that the CAHA retain veto rights over any international exhibition series.

"The agreement gives him (Eagleson) everything with the exception of control of the exhibition games," said Renwick.

"At the meeting a week ago, the only thing he had any argument about was that. He felt we could undermine his bargaining position."

At his press conference Monday, Eagleson did not specify which part of the agreement was in question. He said only that the CAHA had refused to ratify the June agreement and he said the only reason the CAHA gave was that it did not trust Hockey Canada.

The CAHA is a member of Hockey Canada, along with the National Hockey League, the World Hockey Association and other government and sports groups, including the NHL Players Association, of which Eagleson is executive director.

The CAHA remains the Canadian representative in the IIHF and any international hockey events in Canada must be sanctioned by the CAHA. That sanctioning gives the CAHA some power in dealing with the NHL and WHA.

The CAHA recently threatened to cancel a series of games between WHA and European teams until the WHA came to an agreement on reimbursing CAHA members for the drafting and signing of junior players.

The CAHA also stands to gain considerably from events such as the Canada Cup. The profit from the 1976 Canada Cup was $2.2 million and amateur hockey received a half share. The other half went to the NHL and WHA player pension funds.

Eagleson said Monday he was recommending that the 1979 Canada Cup be delayed to 1980. In the event that the conflict with the CAHA could be settled, Eagleson said, the delays would make it difficult to arrange the tournament for 1979.

"We've fallen too far behind," said Eagleson. "I don't know as I can put all the pieces together again so quickly."

Thanks to Cougars, Owners Look Great

The weekend in review. And, after what happened in the Western Hockey League, one would have thought that some members of the Victoria Cougars must have been sitting in on last week's media conference called by the Cougars to announce a number of things.

Because here's the switch. They made the owners look good as they did everything expected of them and maybe a little bit more.

They took care of their two chief rivals in the West, Portland and New Westminster, with a pair of one goal victories, moved into second place, and maybe established the fact that when they set their "December Quota" of six victories in eight home games they were only kidding.

What they really wanted was a clean sweep and coach Jack Shupe remarked after the double victory there is no good reason they can't get what's left of it.

That was on the weekend. Earlier in the week, owner Paul Panchyshyn had suggested to the media that things were going fairly well for the club; attendance was up over the same number of home games last year; the Cougars already were three and three against arch-rival New Westminster with four games having been played in New Westminster (make that four and three with five games in Bruins' country now); the second half of the schedule favors the club and a first or second place finish is not only a distinct possibility but there would be extreme disappointment if it wasn't achieved.

"The playoffs baled us out last year," Panchyshyn admitted of what had almost been a lost effort. "But things have turned around this year, we are averaging 2,432 a game and we can see where we are going," he added.

Panchyshyn also announced an ownership change, the club acquiring the 35 per cent interest held by Paul LaPointe with Shupe, who doubles as club general manager and coach, taking over a 25 per cent share of the operation.

Speaking generally and low key, Panchyshyn said he thought the club had established credibility and is more stable now than other clubs in the city were in the past.

The obvious reference was to other Cougar teams operated primarily by Eric Bishop and Pat Ginnell, about which several stories are legendary and don't necessarily bear repeating at this time.

And it is true — the present-day Cougars have been establishing their reputation by their play and not by their extra-curricular antics. And city council hasn't had to send the mayor or his rep to the arena once this year to keep things in order, which wasn't always the case.

Oh sure, there is bound to be the odd battle — and brawling appears more prevalent in the National Hockey League this season — but that isn't what this club is being remembered for, which is where the credibility factor takes effect.

As for Shupe, who barely missed in the playoffs last year, his new role with the Cougars as a part owner is "something I always wanted to get involved in."

And he, too, feels that the Cougars have passed their initial test this year and, when the injured players return to action and with the second-half schedule favoring them, he is looking forward to a divisional championship.

Otherwise, if you haven't got your tickets to Moscow Selects game next week, don't tarry. It should be a sell-out says arena manager Jack Morgan.

The Selects, it should be explained, are a team averaging about 25-26 years of age and, as the Russians don't generally send out teams that can't hack it, the Cougars are in for an interesting evening and could do quite well.

"It's part of our plan to give the fans a little more of what they want," said Panchyshyn.

Meanwhile, Seattle Seahawks didn't make it and didn't deserve it in their late bid for a possible wild-card berth in the American Football Conference. They took a whipping from the San Diego Chargers, who won't make it either. And if that was a shocker, the Minnesota defeat at the hands of Detroit on Saturday followed by Green Bay's loss to Chicago Sunday, certainly threw "the black-and-blue-division" into a wild weekend twist.

And don't ask me — you pick 'em — as the Vikings meet Oakland at Oakland and Green Bay plays the Rams in Los Angeles. Regardless, neither appears as a playoff threat and those odds will be out next week. So stay tuned.

It was an unfortunate ending to DataTech's double-header win over Renton in the Northwest Basketball League on Sunday when the referee called the game with four minutes to play to prevent what might have been a serious incident. Shoving a referee can perhaps later be excused because of the heat of the action, but threatening him with a chair has no place in sport and the Renton player responsible should be dealt with severely. The fact that Renton only had seven players available is also a poor way for a league of this stature to operate. If the game is going to be sold as a major league, then a major league it should be.

Still congratulations are due DataTech for its fine beginning, and perhaps the best senior "A" club the city has had in some time.

Nelson Leafs Stay in Business

NELSON (CP) — Nelson Maple Leafs of the Western International Hockey League will continue to operate for the rest of the 1978-79 season, club president Les Howard has confirmed.

A meeting of league representatives from Kimberley Dynamiters, Cranbrook Royals, Trail Smoke Eaters, Calgary Stampede and the Leafs was held Monday after owners of the Nelson club said they were considering folding the team.

The club now is about $7,000 in debt, said Howard, but the executive projected a total deficit of $30,000 by the end of the season.

The Leafs have not been competitive so far this year and attendance at home games is less than 600, lowest in the league.

Financial help will come in the form of a house-building project.

Gowsell To Meet Gervais; Hillson Shocks Lukowich

EDMONTON (CP) — The championship game is not until tonight but the highlight of the final round in the $60,000 World Open Tournament of Champions was expected to be this afternoon's semi-final.

The game was a rematch between world junior champion Paul Gowsell of Calgary and Wiley two-time Canadian champion Hector Gervais of St. Albert, Alta.

Gowsell defeated Lyle Davis of Lethbridge in the double-knockout round Monday afternoon to capture one of the four berths in the sudden-death playoff.

Gervais beat Edmonton's Danny Fink 9-6 Monday night after losing 12-6 to Gowsell the day before, forcing him into three "must" games. Monday morning Gervais downed Gord Squire of Regina 7-6 and then knocked out Edmonton's Darwin Daviduk by the same score before meeting Fink.

In the other semi-final, Bob Hawkins of Edmonton takes on unheralded Glen Hillson of Vancouver.

The winners then play for the $20,000 championship.

Hawkins beat Fink 7-5 Monday and Hillson of the Vancouver Super League, coming back off a loss Sunday to Gowsell in his first double-knockout game, won his next four, including a 6-1 upset win over Canadian champion Ed Lukowich of Medicine Hat.

Hawkins, last year a zone finalist in the North Alberta Curling Association playoffs, handed Fink his first defeat after Fink had sailed unbeaten through the 64-rink triple-knockout section and his first two double-knockout games.

Hawkins and Gervais both included lady luck on their rinks. Gervais' second, Stan Austman, quipped that if the rink pulled off any more steals, the sheriff would pay them a visit.

They have done it twice in the last couple of days and only got into the playoff round because of a steal of one in an extra end from Victoria's Steve Skillings.

couver and bout was stopped after end of round. It was 75th win and 65th knockout of 94-fight career for 42-year-old Chuvalo, who weighed blubbery 232 pounds in outclassing Jerome. Chuvalo says he'll continue fighting as long as he keeps winning.

Bengals Arrive Too Late

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals' dressing room sounded like that of a Super Bowl winner Monday night.

And while the club could end up owning the worst record in National Football League at season's end in a week's time, they put together an impressive win Monday night and Bengals coach Homer Rice thinks his team's as good as any of those who already have playoff berths wrapped up.

"We have become a good team... as good as any team going into the playoffs," Rice said after the Bengals had upset Los Angeles Rams 20-19 in a battle of the league's have and have-nots.

Chris Bahr kicked a 42-yard field goal with three minutes remaining to win it for the Bengals, who carried a 2-12-0 record into the game. Only San Francisco 49ers, with a 2-13-0 mark, have a poorer record.

Cincinnati closes out the season at home Sunday against Cleveland Browns.

Billings Crew Drops Tigers

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Billings Bighorns scored two goals in the third period as they defeated Medicine Hat Tigers 6-1 in the only Western Hockey League game Monday night.

Harvey Pozza netted the winning goal, his second of the night, at 5:16 of the final period and Don Nachbaur scored the insurance marker with 13 seconds left after Medicine Hat pulled goalie Kelly Hruddy in favor of an extra attacker.

Expansion Plan Soon?

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League expansion committee may have its plan for absorbing five World Hockey Association teams ready by about mid-January, NHL president John Ziegler said Monday.

The NHL board of governors, meeting in Florida last week, turned the latest expansion proposal over to the advisory and expansion committee composed of Ziegler, William Wirtz of Chicago Black Hawks, Jacques Courtois of Montreal Canadiens, Seymour Knox of Buffalo Sabres, William Jennings of New York Rangers and Emile Francis of St. Louis Blues.

Ziegler told reporters in an informal meeting Monday that the expansion committee's job now involves talking with each NHL club to try and reach a consensus on how the expansion should proceed.

He acknowledged that there remains opposition within the league to the expansion proposal that would bring in Cincinnati Stingers, Edmonton Oilers, Winnipeg Jets, Quebec Nordiques and New England Whalers of the WHA and a possible new franchise at the New Jersey Meadowlands sports centre.

But Ziegler said an expansion proposal would need approval by only three-quarters of the NHL members.

Asked how such a vote would go if it were conducted today, Ziegler said: "It's too early to say because we still do not have a plan."

One of the top selling points of the latest expansion plan is that the five WHA members seeking admission now have adequate financial backing to ensure protection against any litigation arising from previous WHA operations.

Ziegler said previous proposals for an accommodation lacked such protection.

Dionne Tops Candor List

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's more to Marcel Dionne than the obvious talents which make him one of the finest players in the National Hockey League.

The fact he's a two-time winner of the Lady Byng Trophy tells a lot about his character and there aren't too many professional athletes with his candor. Consider Dionne's assessment of Los Angeles Kings, where the 27-year-old centre has played since the 1975-76 season when he was acquired from Detroit Red Wings.

"We're playing as a unit probably better than ever, I think everybody's thinking the right way," the eight-year NHL veteran said recently. "We don't have a great hockey team, but everybody's been a part of it — we're aware of our capabilities."

"I don't think it would be possible for the Kings to win a Stanley Cup. I don't think it will be available in the near future. You look at the records and other teams in the league."

That's a bit shocking in this day and age, where just about any athlete will express the opinion, sincerely or otherwise, that his team has a chance to win all the marbles.

But not Dionne, currently the second-leading scorer in the NHL and winner in 1975 and 1977 of the Lady Byng, which goes to the player judged to have exhibited the best sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of playing ability.

"I'm not criticizing, it's just the facts," said the Drummondville, Que., native. "We're always going to have a team that's going to be up there in the standings. But you've got to get the guys out of the draft."

Dionne was bothered much of last season by a shoulder injury but still managed to lead the team in scoring with 36 goals and 43 assists. So far this season, he has 21 goals and 20 assists and has been a major factor in the Kings' 13-10-3 record.

Dionne recently set a club record by scoring at least one goal in seven consecutive games. The modern-day NHL consecutive-game goal-scoring mark is 16 set by Punch Broadbent of Ottawa Senators during the 1921-22 season.

Meanwhile, Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens has increased his lead in the NHL scoring race to three points over Dionne, according to official statistics released today.

American Swimmers Under Ban

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The United States Amateur Athletic Union confirmed Monday the suspensions of 18 swimmers from international competition for periods ranging from three months to two years.

The AAU said the suspensions stemmed from two incidents this year in which the swimmers violated the organization's code of conduct.

The AAU refused to identify the swimmers or the specific violations, but the mother of 15-year-old world champion Tracy Caulkins said on the weekend her daughter was one of those involved.

Martha Caulkins told a reporter the AAU suspended her daughter and 12 other swimmers because they were found to be out of their rooms after curfew during a swimming meet last April at Austin, Tex. She said some of the girls were attending a birthday party, for another swimmer.

The AAU said the suspensions were made by the international-competition subcommittee of its competitive swimming committee during the AAU national convention in San Antonio two weeks ago. The AAU said it withheld confirmation of the suspensions pending notification by mail to all of the swimmers.

The official AAU announcement said 13 swimmers were suspended following the meet in Austin. Those suspensions will run from Jan. 1 to March 31.

Five others were suspended for actions at a training camp in Colorado Springs, Colo., before a U.S.-Canada dual meet in August.

Of this group, one was suspended for one year with a year's probation, two were suspended for two years with two years' probation, and two were suspended for two years with two years' probation and a further recommendation to the AAU board of review to suspend them from all AAU activities for two years.

All of the swimmers may appeal the suspensions.

Coaches Program Back on Track

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

A botched beginning has thrown basketball's coaching certification program several months behind schedule, but provincial development co-ordinator John Olsen expects to catch up in the New Year.

If the job had been done right in the first place, Olsen believes, there would have been at least 400 more coaches with level one certification in B.C. and the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association would have been ready to begin the level two program on schedule this fall.

Now, however, the level two program won't begin until January.

A main stumbling block was the coaching manual.

"When it first came out in the fall of 1977, I think the program was probably put together too quickly," Olsen said. "It was very poor quality. They (the CABA) were trying to meet a deadline under pressure from coaches and Sport Canada (the federal government's sport ministry in Ottawa)."

The quality suffered, Olsen added. The manual (about 80 pages) was poorly written, contained grammatical errors and the content simply was not suitable to a level one program.

For example, it contained a section on offence that was based on the same offence our Olympic team used. It was effective for players anywhere from six-foot-seven to seven feet tall, but it had little relevance to a level one program for players age 11 and up."

JOHN OLSEN
conducts B.C. classes

More to the point, it was nearly impossible for a volunteer coach to understand. The manual was put together by national coach Jack Donohue but Olsen, a contributor to the book, points out he wasn't given enough time to do the job.

"The timing couldn't have been worse," Olsen said. "It was an Olympic year and Jack had his hands full preparing a team for Montreal."

Donohue did a first-class job there, as Canada's fourth-place finish attests. It was the best effort by Canada in Olympic basketball since the 1936 silver-medal finish in Berlin.

In any case, 475 coaches in B.C. (about 40 per cent of them women) obtained level one certification by using the manual and attending sessions organized by Olsen and conducted by several college coaches, among them Ken and Kathy Shields at UVic.

The sessions started in September, 1978, but were suspended the following February until the manual was rewritten. The job was handed to Barry Mitchelson, former coach of Alberta Golden Bears and now a member of Alberta's physical education faculty.

It took him eight months and the 130-page result has been praised by the Coaching Association of Canada as one of the finest manuals of any sport in the country.

Particularly satisfying to Olsen is the fact that the section he contributed to the original work survived untouched in the revised version.

Armed with the new manual, Olsen is putting the show back on the road. Of the 17 courses offered so far in B.C., Olsen has conducted 13 of them, including two in Victoria where about 50 persons have been certified.

Olsen still has 23 communities to cover.

"We're going to have to have another session in Victoria, probably next spring after the basketball season," he added.

"You can go to the convention if you're lucky enough to make it through this door."

MackKay Sets Scoring Pace

Jim MacKay of runner-up Victoria Athletics is setting the scoring pace at the midway Christmas break in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League season.

MacKay leads league marksmen with a 17.8 points-per-game average and 160 points and while Brian Sutherland-Brown of leading Ivy's is second with a 17.3 average and 156 points.

Lorne Dakin of Ivy's is in third place with 17.0 and 102 points.

Juan de Fuca Gulls moved into a share of third place with Esquimalt Legion by mauling Lake Cowichan Baird's Trucking 11-1 in South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League play Monday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Terry Coughlin, Guy Moran and Mike Milligan scored two goals each to spark the Gull attack while singles were chipped in by Mark Selva, Steve Saunders, Ron Hope, Bob Grant and Dave Kjolberg.

Steve Johnson averted the shutout for Lake Cowichan. Shane Theobald managed to make 53 saves in the Lake Cowichan goal and Peter Adamek blocked 19 shots for Juan de Fuca.

Preliminary Plans Set For Olympic Selection

CALGARY (CP) — University of Toronto and University of Alberta players dominate the two preliminary Canadian Olympic hockey squads announced Monday.

Ten members of Toronto Blues and six from Alberta Golden Bears topped the rosters of 50 players named to the red and white teams.

The white team, coached by Claire Drake, University of Alberta coach, and Lorne Davis, former Regina Pats coach, will participate in an international junior tournament in Ontario during the Christmas holidays before returning to Calgary to face Edmonton Oilers of the World Hockey Association and Moscow Dynamo Riga in a five-game series.

The red squad, coached by Tom Watt, University of Toronto coach, and Charles Thiffault, Laval University coach, leaves Toronto Dec.

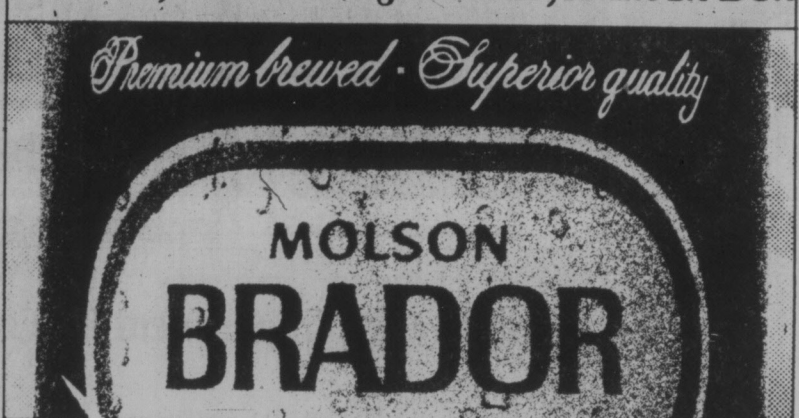

19 for a nine-game series against international teams in Czechoslovakia, West Germany and France.

For the most part, the red team includes Canadians playing for United States universities and colleges and the players must be back after Jan. 1 to return to school.

The white team includes Canadians playing for Canadian universities and senior players.

Nanaimo, Ontario Teams Coming to Oakleaf Classic

Nanaimo Islanders, last season's B.C. Boys high school "AA" basketball champions, are among eight schools entered in the third annual Oakleaf Classic, a national high school tournament slated for Oak Bay Senior Secondary Jan. 26-28.

Oak Bay Bays coach Dave Morgan, tournament chairman, announced the lineup today.

Nanaimo won the tournament last year and will be up against two top Ontario schools — Lockerby High School of Sudbury and Ottawa Brookfield — as well as Viscount Bennett of Calgary.

Other B.C. entries are Mount Doug Rams, Vancouver College and Richmond as well as the host Bays.

Lloyd Free continues to pay dividends on San Diego's future investment. The explosive guard, who came to the Clippers from Philadelphia '76ers just before the start of the season in exchange for a 1984 first-round draft choice, scored 28 points Sunday night, including two free throws with nine seconds to play that gave San Diego a 107-106 National Basketball Association victory over Milwaukee Bucks.

Free said he welcomed the pressure as he stepped to the foul line with his team down by one.

"You've got to have pride in yourself," said Free, whose self-proclaimed nickname is All-World. "No matter how much time is left, you have to feel you can win the game."

Clippers coach Gene Shue calls Free "one of the most talented players in the league."

"It's crazy we even had a chance to get him for what we gave up," Shue added.

Free, a reserve at Philadelphia, has blossomed into the league's No. 2 scorer with a 27-point average since being given a chance to start at San Diego—and won't cost the Clippers a thing for almost six years. Milwaukee, which led by seven points midway through the final period, trailed 105-102 before the Clippers got tagged with their second zone technical. Brian Winters sank both free throws with 1:16 to go and hit a jumper with 13 seconds left to put the Bucks ahead.

After a time out, Free was fouled by Norm Van Lier and calmly sank both free throws to give San Diego a one-point lead. Milwaukee had two chances to pull it out, but Ernie Grunfeld and Winters missed jumpers in the closing seconds.

Winters, who topped the Bucks with 28 points, noted it was his team's third loss in three nights in three different cities.

"That's the NBA," he said. "That's what you have to live with. You can't say you're tired—you have to play."

Fivepin Qualifiers

Fourteen Victorians have qualified for teams that will represent Victoria in the 17th annual Junior Pacific fivepin bowling championships at Burnaby, Feb. 3-4. Dennis Greig, rolling a five-game series total of 1,168, led the seven who qualified for the boys' team. The others (with trial totals in brackets) are Mike Youson (1,142), Rick Lowres (1,138), Ward Forgie (1,091), Keith Bayne (1,063), Rick Benn (1,039) and Ron Wagemaker (1,023).

Jackie Waggoner topped the girls' qualifying trials with a 1,052 total.

Also selected to the girls team were Stephanie Spreen (1,016), Diane Fokkema (978), Crystal Etifier (949), Maureen Finlay (934), Sue Green (892) and Gina Kightly (891).

Participate in Canada's Employment Tax Credit Program.

The Employment Tax Credit Program was introduced by the Government of Canada to stimulate employment in the private sector.

In essence, we're encouraging you to expand your work force by providing a tax break for your business.

The potential annual tax credit for each new employee is over $3,000. And there is no limit to the number of new employees you can hire.

Now, by using the experience we've gained so far, we've changed the program to make it even more attractive.

Up to 33% more tax credit.

The maximum term for the tax credit has been increased from nine to 12 months for each new employee. That means up to 33% more tax credit.

Greater eligibility.

We have expanded the number and types of businesses eligible to benefit. Now almost every business that's been operating in Canada for a year or more can join in.

Wider choice of new employees.

Now, almost anyone who's unemployed and registered at a Canada Employment Centre for a minimum of two weeks is eligible.

A minimum of red tape.

We've simplified the procedure, so you can do the whole thing, from beginning to end, with just two single-page forms.

For full details on the program, contact any Canada Employment Centre or Canada Manpower Centre.

EMPLOYERS: CAN YOU IGNORE A POSSIBLE TAX CREDIT OF $3,000 OR MORE?

Thorpe Denies All

MINEHEAD, England (UPI) — Magistrates today adjourned a preliminary hearing on charges against former Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe and will announce Wednesday whether he and three other men must be tried for conspiracy to murder.

Before the three small-town magistrates called a halt to the three-week-old hearings, Thorpe denied in a statement he had conspired to murder one-time male model Norman Scott to keep Scott quiet about an alleged homosexual relationship with Thorpe.

"By the spring of 1975, the worst that Scott could falsely allege already had been revealed," Thorpe said.

"Far from having adversely affected me or the Liberal Party, under my leadership the party had done very well in the elections of 1974."

"It would be ludicrous to suggest either that I felt any public reliance would be put on my utterances or that any measures would be needed to deal with him. Least of all the wholly unthinkable approach of conspiring to achieve his death, injury or otherwise," Thorpe said.

Thorpe also denied being a party to any payment to Andrew Newton, a one-time airline pilot who alleged he was hired to kill Scott.

Thorpe, 49 and twice married, had been called a liar earlier in the day by a prosecuting attorney.

Peter Taylor, leading the prosecution team, charged in court today that Thorpe had lied three times in statements to the police over money given to him by a millionaire supporter of the Liberal party.

Taylor was rebutting the three-hour statement Monday by Sir David Napley, Thorpe's attorney, which attacked "the credibility of prosecution witnesses."

The prosecution spent 11 days presenting its case against Thorpe and three others.

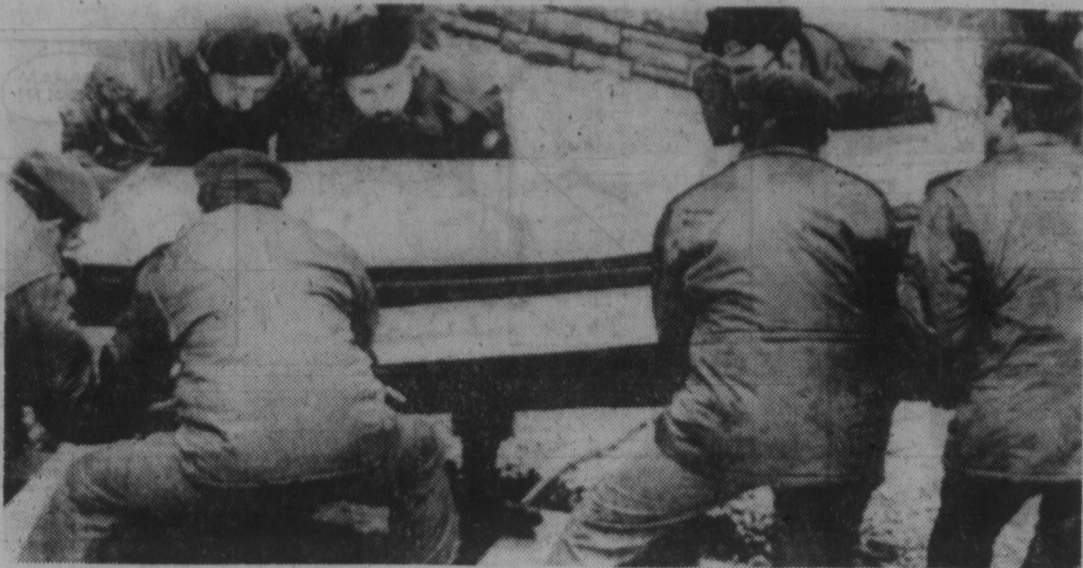

Quake Rocks Philippines

MANILA (AP) — A sharp earthquake rocked a wide area in the central and southern Philippines today. No damage was reported.

The agency said the quake was felt in several cities in the Pacific island group.

In Stockholm, the Hagfors seismological observatory said the tremor registered 7.2 on the Richter scale.

Meanwhile, it was reported late Monday that an earthquake measuring 3.5 on the Richter scale had been recorded Sunday night along the Alabama-Mississippi border about 100 miles north of Mobile, Ala.

Soldiers lower flag-draped coffin into Mount Herzl grave

Golda Laid to Rest

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Golda Meir, one of the giants who helped found Israel and in anguish steered it through its most trying war, was buried today in a driving rain in a grave overlooking a placid pine forest.

The Russian-born, American-educated former prime minister, who guided Israel through the Yom Kippur war of 1973, was buried without eulogies as she had requested in her will.

Dignitaries from Israel and around the world huddled under umbrellas against a background of solemn ancient prayers and streaming rain at the state funeral service.

The gravesite overlooked

a green pine forest surrounding Jerusalem.

The rain forced more than 300 mourners into the shelter of a forest of umbrellas at the gravesite in the "Greats of the Nation" section of the cemetery, named for the founder of Zionism, Theodor Herzl.

Mrs. Meir, who died Friday at 80 of cancer, was buried beside Levi Eshkol, Israel's third prime minister whom she succeeded in March, 1969. She retired, exhausted, in June 1974.

Eight pallbearers — six of the nation's highest-ranking generals and two of its top-ranked police — led the mourners along the wet, winding path from the funeral cortege that brought them from the Knesset building where 1,000 persons attended a 20-minute service.

There were no eulogies but actress Orna Porath read an excerpt from Mrs.

Meir's autobiography, My Life, and from one of her speeches in which she said: "I believe we will have peace with our neighbors. But no one will make peace with a weak Israel."

The rain stopped suddenly near the end of the two-hour ceremony and the sun emerged only for seconds as women second lieutenants covered Mrs. Meir's grave with multicolored floral wreaths. The rain started again as the mourners filed past the grave.

Mrs. Meir's son, Menachem, read the ancient Kaddish prayer for the dead, as he did earlier during the ceremony in the foyer of the Knesset building.

CARTER SAYS DEADLINE ALL BUT IMPOSSIBLE

Times News Services
WASHINGTON — President Carter today called the Sunday deadline for signing of a Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty "quite important" and said failure to sign the accord would set a "bad precedent."

But he said he does not consider the deadline a "now or never" proposition.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, currently on a Middle East peace shuttle, "reports to me from Cairo good progress has been made between him and (Egyptian) President Sadat," Carter said.

On the importance of the deadline, Carter said: "If the Egyptians and the Israelis cannot keep a commitment on a three-month conclusion of the peace treaty when they themselves are the only two nations involved... then I think it will be very difficult for them to expect the terms of the treaty they are negotiating to be carried out with assurance."

However, the U.S. president also said he doubted Vance could put together an agreement soon enough to meet the Sunday deadline set out in the Camp David accords.

Vance today returned to Cairo from Jerusalem, where he paid his last respects to former Israeli prime minister Golda Meir.

SCOTT'S WORLD

Girls and Football Popular Combo

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — It's ironic in this day of women's lib that more and more pulchritude is on display on TV shows, posters, girls' magazines and movies, cries of chauvinism from feminists notwithstanding.

For sheer numbers of bare limbs and accentuated bosoms it is difficult to beat the professional football cheerleading corps, where acres of curvy women are featured during times out and at half-time exercises.

It was only a matter of time before some smart producer capitalized on public fascination with jiggle shows and prancing cheerleaders by incorporating them in a television movie.

Ergo, The Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, beaming Jan 14 via ABC-TV.

One of the stars of the show is Katherine Baumann, a leggy beauty who was first runner-up in the 1970 Miss America contest.

Kathy is a saucy brunette with big brown eyes, a turned-up nose, and a world class figure. She eschews bras and wears form-fitting clothes.

"I'm all for the cheerleaders," she said. "They may not add anything to the game itself but they're more than a distraction."

Kathy went to Dallas to work with the 36 Cowboys' cheerleaders and made many friends among them. She plays an unsympathetic role in the show, a girl who tries out for the cheerleading squad and fails.

Her new friends include Suzanne Mitchell, director of the Dallas group. "She's a real martinet," Kathy said. "Suzanne has set high standards for the Dallas cheerleaders who aren't allowed to pose for girls' magazine or behave in any other unladylike way."

"They are paid only $15 a game and must attend three workouts a week for the games. All of them are between 18 and 27. They must have 9-to-5 daytime jobs. Some of the girls are married and none of them is allowed to fraternize with the football players."

"They're good dancers, of course, and they have to be more or less well endowed to wear the sexy, revealing outfits."

Kathy is an old hand at wearing sexy outfits, having entered more than a dozen beauty contests in her young life. In addition to being first runner-up to Miss America, she was Miss Ohio, Miss Bowling Green and competed for Miss Teen-Age International and Miss Teen-Age America among many others.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, December 13 By Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be ready for trip — get material organized. You'll have more responsibility and work. Your chances for reward multiply. Older individual may attempt to intimidate you. Humor could be your ally. Show that you are not afraid, only amused.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on discerning what is of value. Personal possessions, income are featured. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. You sense that someone wants something from you — from you. Key is to be realistic — and discreet.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle high — be direct, confident. Circumstances favor your efforts. You succeed now through personal appeals. Cancer, Capricorn and the number 8 figure prominently. Older individual lends valuable support.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Complete project — get hands on pulse of public. Someone confides secret information. A dream could prove prophetic. Be perceptive — piece together clues from various sources. The picture will take form.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Wishes can become realities — maintain confident, positive attitude. Another Leo is in picture. New contact makes life more exciting. If single, you could meet "the person." Married or single, your creative juices are activated. You feel more alive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Outline plans, ambitions — there is room for you at top. Now, prove it! Aquarius, Cancer, Leo persons figure prominently. Teach, learn and do something about eating habits. Nutrition now is more important to you than in recent past.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Good Moon aspect coincides now with long-distance call, travel plans, a way to get message across to more people more of the time. Highlight adaptability, humor, versatility, ability to perceive when something of importance is to occur.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Reject the flimsy, duplications, substitutions. Be thorough, insist on quality. Elevate your own self-esteem. Aquarius, Leo and another Scorpio figure prominently. Check fine print. Make your own meanings "perfectly clear."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Spotlight on publicity, going slow, bobbing, weaving, avoiding making final commitment. Partner or spouse wants some changes made — and you should be receptive. You could be offered a contract. Read between the lines.

Ottawa Asked To Aid Terrace

The provincial government has asked Ottawa for $12 million to help out the Terrace area, hit by serious flooding in early November. Highway Minister Alex Fraser said Monday the damage estimate will exceed $20 million. Ottawa has already sent a check for $3 million and Fraser said he is confident the federal government will come up with another $9 million.

Students Protest Bus Service

COMOX (CP) — About 50 students from Highland Senior Secondary staged a peaceful demonstration Monday outside the school to protest bus service to the new high school. Spokesmen for the demonstrators said they wanted more buses made available to students and improved lighting along sidestreets near the school.

Snowmobilers' Bodies Recovered

FRASER LAKE (CP) — The bodies of three men who drowned Sunday after three snowmobiles they were riding crashed through ice into Knapp Lake near here have been recovered, RCMP said Monday. Police identified the victims as Edward Collin Gerhardt, 31, Alfred John Gunning, 34, and Wayne David Barr, 31, all of Fraser Lake.

Indecent Assault Guilty Plea

VANCOUVER (CP) — Aaron Gutman of Vancouver pleaded guilty Monday in provincial court to four counts of indecent assault at his optical office.

He was charged after four women made complaints to police, who had started an investigation when several women complained to Rape Relief, a volunteer women's group that assists rape victims.

Regions' Role Still Uncertain

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Union of British Columbia Municipalities (UBCM) concluded a special convention on regional districts Monday without reaching a firm decision on the concept.

Delegates conditionally approved a motion to ask the provincial government to define and legislate the role of regional districts in local affairs.

Bill Vander Zalm, attending the meeting in his new capacity of minister of municipal affairs, said there was confusion among the 500 delegates on the role of regional districts.

Delegates, however, tentatively approved a general position outlined by chairman Frank Clark, director of the Columbia-Shuswap Regional District.

—The government should recognize the need for a regional tier of local government.

—Legislation should be enacted to define the role and jurisdiction of the districts' administration.

—A mayor of a municipality should not automatically be a member of a regional district board.

—The government should remove the requirement that the districts' functions be authorized by letters patent or supplementary letters patent, and give this authority to the minister of municipal affairs.

The union is to meet with Vander Zalm today in Victoria to discuss resolutions adopted at its annual convention held in Penticton earlier this year.

Postal Pickets Outside Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 20 inside postal workers demonstrated Monday outside the B.C. Supreme court when one of their leaders appeared in court.

Frank Walden, regional director of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), appeared on a preferred indictment on a charge of disobeying the federal government's back-to-work legislation.

The government legislated the postal workers back to work after a strike in late October. Several union leaders recommended the membership continue the strike.

UBC Professor Chosen To Mediate Kootenay Rift

CASTLEGAR (CP) — Dr. Noel Hall of the University of British Columbia faculty Monday was appointed special mediator in the West Kootenay schools labor dispute.

The appointment was made by Labor Minister Allan Williams after the provincial government Saturday passed emergency legislation to send non-teaching employees back to work.

Hall, a commerce and business administration professor, will deal with disputes affecting Selkirk college here and the school districts of Nelson, Trail, Castlegar and Grand Forks.

Non-teaching employees in those areas abided by back-to-work legislation Monday, ending a six-week strike-lockout that had disrupted normal teaching at the schools.

Williams said from Victoria that Hall has a lot of experience in solving industrial disputes in the province. His appointment is for 30 days, although it can be extended on request to the minister.

About 200 of the 250 workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), voted Sunday to return to their jobs.

The legislation was passed early Saturday morning after a marathon special session which began Friday morning in Victoria.

Fred Pyke, national CUPE representative, said the return would be a grudging one because the workers "figure the trustees have given up any sense of honesty with them as employees."

Pyke said he expects the dispute will go to arbitration because the B.C. School Trustees Association, bargaining for school districts, won't be willing to change its position during mediation.

He said all CUPE workers will work to rule and no overtime will be worked.

In New Westminster Monday, the B.C. director of CUPE warned that the aftermath of the "atomic-bomb" used by the provincial government in settling the West Kootenay schools dispute will be felt across the province in upcoming contract negotiations.

Ray Mercer said the back-to-work legislation passed Saturday takes the right-to-strike away from 23,000 of the 25,000 CUPE members across B.C.

He predicted the upcoming negotiations with schools, regional districts and municipal governments will be marked by "frustration, confrontation and dissatisfaction."

The legislation, passed to end the six-week closure of West Kootenay district schools, provides for the inclusion of educational and municipal workers under the Essential Services Disputes Act.

ernment to order strikers back to work.

"They've destroyed the collective bargaining process," Mercer said.

"Instead of using a fire-cracker, they've used an atomic bomb."

Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

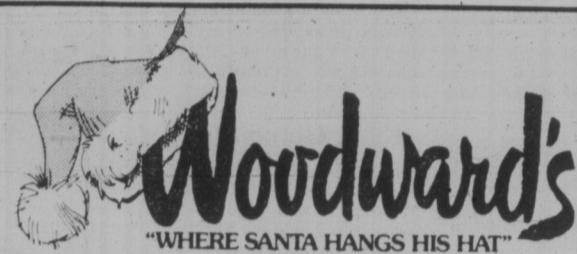

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most important of all—results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Food Price Jump Of 8-10% Forecast

OTTAWA (CP) — Food prices will likely increase by 8 to 10 per cent next year, mainly because of added costs between the farmer and dinner table, the agriculture outlook conference was told Monday.

The prices to farmers for most commodities will remain stable and little change is expected in the value of the dollar, said Peter Caskey, director general of development in the agriculture department. But it would cost more to handle, transport and process the food.

He delivered a speech prepared by Stu Borland, head of the agriculture department's market analysis and trade policy directorate, who was unable to attend the two-day conference.

For the 12-month period ending in October, food prices jumped by 11.5 per cent due largely to an increase of 41 per cent for beef, 30 per cent for fresh fruit and 20 per cent for poultry.

The food-price increase was well ahead of the 8.7 per cent increase in the over-all consumer price index. But the system has absorbed the major impact of a number of influences which caused the surge in food prices.

From 1969 to 1977, increases in wages and salaries outpaced food price rises. "During 1978 the increase in food prices exceeded the 12-cent rise in personal disposable income as did the prices of many other essential items. This was largely a result of the nation's painful adjustment to a more realistic price level for our imports."

But Canadians spend less of their income on food than anyone else but Americans, he said.

"The raw product of the farm today accounts for only 10 per cent of the consumer's food dollar and that proportion is still declining."

Veteran City Pilot In Hall Of Fame

Veteran Victoria pilot H. Marlowe Kennedy has been named to Canada's Aviation Hall of Fame.

Kennedy, 74, of 1663 Rockland, flew early night mail routes for Western Canada Airways and was among the first group of pilots hired by Trans Canada Airlines (now Air Canada).

A pioneer in aerial photography, he served 16 years with the Canadian Air Force, retiring as group captain in 1956.

Kennedy is one of three British Columbians selected for the honor.

The other two are Arthur Wilson, 79, the first instructor of the Victoria Flying Club, and William May, 69, who flew for Pacific Western Airlines for 47 years before retiring three years ago.

Wilson and May now live in Vancouver. The trio will be invested in Edmonton next June.

Fruit Stands Best: Study

The provincial government should assist fruit growers in expanding roadside stand sales because it's the best marketing method, says a study prepared for the standing committee on agriculture.

The report also says marketing board practices which restrict direct grower and roadside sales should be investigated and limited.

The study found that the return to the farmer from roadside stand sales is higher than through other outlets while at the same time consumers get the lowest price.

The report is one in a series for the committee which has spent some $3 million to date investigating the entire agriculture industry in the province.

Restricting government subsidies to fruit growers through marketing boards is discriminatory because it disrupts established supply arrangements between growers and roadside tenants, the report says.

"Growers and roadside stand operators suggest that consumer needs can be distorted or misread by retailers, wholesalers, marketing boards and sales agencies."

Although the most efficient marketing method, roadside stands currently account for only 17 per cent of the total sales of fresh fruit and vegetables.

The system should therefore be expanded to areas such as Vancouver Island that are not currently serviced.

Wine Best Medicine? It Can Sure Help: MD

By ANDREA FREUND
New York Times

PARIS — A French handbook reporting on the medical uses of wine has quietly gone into its sixth edition and is turning into an international success as well.

The book is Dr. Emerick Armand Maury's Soignez-vous par le Vin, somewhat misleadingly translated as Wine is Our Best Medicine in its American edition.

Maury indeed never claimed that wine alone could cure any illness. What he has written is that wine can usefully contribute to recovery from a wide variety of ailments.

And the author holds that wine is better for you than much of the tap water at our disposal, provided the wine is good and the dose is reasonable.

The fact is that Maury, who says he drinks a litre of good wine every day and has done so all his life, looks a good ten years younger than his actual 76.

Maury's theory is simple. All wines have about 250 different ingredients, largely drawn from the minerals in the soil. Many such minerals — potassium, magnesium, sodium and iron — have various curative properties. Their proportions in wines vary with the soils on which they are grown.

Wines can thus be classified in terms of the medicinal values they derive from their places of origin, Maury says, and can be recommended as ancillary medication for this or that physical deficiency.

Three examples:
● Maury recommends Medoc to persons susceptible to allergic conditions because that wine contains natural potassium, and potassium tends toward controlling the retention of water involved in allergies.

● Graves is similarly recommended to people suffering from anemia because of its iron content, which will help bring up the number of red blood cells, Maury says.

● Sancerre and Pouilly are suggested as good against gallstones.

Maury's listing also takes account of the presence of vitamins in wine.

Conditions and illnesses where Maury has found wines of use include angina, bronchitis, colitis, the flu and typhoid fever.

Most unexpected on Maury's list is the mention of diabetes. There the doctor suggests young red wines, because of their high vitamin content, apt to stimulate the combustion of sugar and fats. Also, apparently, young wines have a nutritive value that can usefully take the place of the forbidden starches.

In Maury's classification, the wines with the most extensive curative properties are Bordeaux and Champagne.

Champagne is notably recommended in cases of stomach aches, colic, colic, coronary trouble, fever, hemorrhages, chronic rheumatism, tuberculosis and old age.

Medocs are recommended for people with bronchitis or suffering from nervous depression or diarrhea and Saint-Emilion against dehydration, excessive tiredness, eye fatigue and itching skin.

The soothing qualities of wine have been known since biblical times, according to Maury. Noah planted a vine first thing after the flood when disembarking from his ark.

And the great bacteriologist Louis Pasteur, after all, called wine "the best and healthiest among beverages."

Maury's own interest in wine goes back quite simply to the fact he has always liked to drink it.

As a general practitioner in Paris for four decades, he frequently found that patients' morale went up sharply if upon his recommendation they switched from drinking water to taking wine, with an ensuing benefit to their physical condition as well.

Maury then took up collecting various scientific communications on wine in the Bordeaux and other wine-growing areas, notably by members of an organization known as the Doctors' Association of Friends of Wine. He then completed these works with his own research.

Pork Fat Facials Waning in Moscow

MOSCOW (Reuter) — How to succeed in Moscow? Miss Average gets a teased hairdo and a miniskirt.

When the cold weather comes, on the best official advice, she smears pork fat on her face and hands and sallies forth into the snow.

Life is tough here for the woman who likes to look good. Sub-zero temperatures outdoors and overheated stores make for frostbitten blotches and broken veins.

The Russian capital, which in wet weather can see like an unending building site, is no place for delicate shoes and stockings.

Attractive outfits vanish the day they come into stores and most women are in the habit of simply altering last year's wardrobe to wear yet another year.

Even if the woman on the street is better dressed than she was five years ago, the combination of few and poor cosmetics, long, chill winters and a shortage of imported stylish clothes still make her lag a long way behind her Western counterpart.

But there is help. All over Moscow, small unisex beauty parlors work long hours helping Russians face the world better-looking.

A woman can drop into a salon for a quick wash and set on her way to work for as little as about 70 cents American.

"Soviet women take very good care of themselves," one cosmetologist says. "They come often and want a facial massage, a cleansing mask, their eyebrows shaped, in fact everything that's going."

Fashions change slowly without free access to Western cosmetic markets and modish Western publications.

But who wants fashion anyway?

"Beauty is a lively, intelligent look and a kind smile and both come from a girl's character and a state of well-being inside her emanating from the process of creative work," a typical cosmetics booklet said this year.

In a typical salon, clients wait on red and yellow chairs with neither glossy magazines nor coffee to while away their time. The surroundings do not encourage beauty chatter and many slip out to the shops in the meantime.

But once in the chair, for the equivalent of $2.50 American they can have their skin cleansed, massaged, smoothed with a herbal mask and freshly made-up.

To keep up the good work at home, natural beauty remedies — yogurt, vegetable oil, eggs, yeast, cabbage — are available cheaply all the year and are officially recommended for skin care.

A DREAM KITCHEN

When planning to re-do a kitchen, there is little that the homeowner can work on, except for painting and selecting accessories, such as curtains, cupboard moldings, racks for hanging utensils. All can add new life to an existing kitchen, and most homeowners recognize that these are the limits of his abilities. Let professionals handle the big remodeling jobs, such as knocking out walls and relocating appliances.

However, it is fun to keep a file of ideas for that day when the kitchen is made new again. A picture can show the professional what appeals to you and what will work best for your life style.

We show here a kitchen for that "some day". The kitchen seems to be an oval shape which is most attractive, and the luminous ceiling, with rounded ends, augments the impression of an oval. But instead, the kitchen end is angled. The two sides are straight, and the cooking area is at right angles to them, but between, intervening cabinets cut across the corners. This rounds off the kitchen end.

Not only is the design eye appealing, it also shortens the counter lengths which saves steps. With the range at the end, the sink on one side and the refrigerator opposite, there is counter space between these appliances handy both for work and for spreading out utensils and food.

Food processors and other small appliances can be left on the counter, conveniently ready for use, and still leave ample clear counter areas.

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4.

DEAR DR. COTTER: I am a 13-year-old girl, considered pretty and well built. There are two guys in my school, both of whom I like a lot.

I like one more. He asked me to go steady, but I didn't answer because I'm afraid the other will be on my mind so much it will break me up with the first guy. I don't want to hurt either. They both seem to be on edge with each other lately although they used to be great friends. They could each pick up any chick with a snap of their fingers.

ANSWER: Snapping fingers is clever, but it doesn't make for lasting or honest relationships. It sounds as though you think you can pick up either finger-snapper with a snap of yours. I suggest you keep out of that game.

If you don't want to hurt either of them and you are not really clear which one you want to go out with the most, then be honest with them and tell them both you want to enjoy both friendships and go steady with neither. If either or both of them think that you're no finger-snapper, then you'll have the other or someone entirely different with whom you don't need to play games.

DEAR DR. POWELL: At what age should you have your first Pap test?

ANSWER: A Pap test is performed during a pelvic examination when a woman of any age is examined. It should be done at least every two years but is frequently repeated on an annual basis. It consists of placing a thin layer of the surface cells of the cervix taken on a special spatula on a glass slide. This is stained with dye in the laboratory and carefully examined for abnormal cells.

Pap tests are carried out as part of the pelvic examination and should be done as soon as a woman is old enough to be examined. This will vary somewhat but it should become routine when she begins to have intercourse. All women should begin to have Pap smears by the time they are in their 20's.

DEAR MR. VICHERT: I am a 13-year-old girl who is in a very bad state. Ever since the beginning of this year I have liked this guy.

He's really big-headed because he knows he's cute. The problem is he always leads me on to thinking he likes me. And then the next thing I find out (from various sources) is that he's talking about me to another guy behind my back.

I don't think it's fair. I keep telling myself that I don't like him but deep down inside I really do. And whenever I see him I always break down and start talking to him but only to be hurt again. I've really tried everything but nothing works. It's getting to a point that I can't stop thinking about him. Please help me find a solution. I don't want to be hurt again.

ANSWER: It is difficult to like someone and then hear from friends that that person is talking about you.

I presume that you are upset because he is saying unkind things about you, rather than that he thinks highly of you. However, I would advise you to put some faith in your judgment and selection of people you like.

For some reason, in spite of hearing these reports, you still like this guy. Well, perhaps your instincts are better than your friends' reports, so why don't you ask him what he is telling his friends since you have heard that he is talking about you? Before you condemn him give him a chance to defend himself or reassure you.

Whenever possible, try not to listen to rumor but check the facts out for yourself directly at the source. Then at least you will have your own information and impressions upon which to make your decision.

Every child needs some guidance to help him understand how a family manages to live together without friction. For many children it is not always easy to get along with others. Parents can help their youngsters by teaching them how to make and keep friends.

The six-page folder Learning About Family Life urges parents to listen to their children and to take time to discuss their thoughts and problems.

Every child also has to learn gradually to prepare for the future. This involves learning about the value of education, the wise use of money and choosing a career.

According to the folder, there are four main things you, as a parent, can do for your children. Communicate with them and encourage them to talk about their feelings and problems. Investigate and support the Family Life Education Program in their schools and teach them what influences the modern family and how family life can be improved.

The folder also recommends several paperback books which deal with family life and would prove helpful to concerned parents.

While supplies last the folder is available from: Family Planning Publications, Health and Welfare Canada, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 1B5.

The Christmas she Learned What a Nice Guy Dad Was

This story is from Mrs. Albert (Emily) Robertson, 2520 Wootton Cr. It came after she read I was looking for people to share memories of Christmases past with me.

She remembers a Christmas back in 1927, in a little settlement named Phone Hill, about 10 miles from Yorkton, Sask., when she discovered "what a nice man my Dad really was."

Being the youngest in a family of 12, she explained, "I had somehow formed the idea my Dad was there to discipline us and to keep the older ones in order and, until that day, I really think I was a bit afraid of him."

Phone Hill was little more than a post office, two grain elevators, a railway station and a schoolhouse.

Shortly before Christmas, 1927, there was a terrific snowstorm. Drifts were "sky high" and the train that was to bring a tree for the school's Christmas concert got stuck a mile out of Yorkton. Even a snowplow couldn't get it on its way again.

"We were practising for the concert which was that very night when the school trustees came in with a popular tree and said we'd better trim it as we'd have no other tree that year," Mrs. Robertson remembers.

"It was a terrible disappointment and we were nearly crying but we did start to trim the scraggly thing."

Suddenly, as she worked, the young Emily had an idea. She knew her father, Solomon Cook, was in Yorkton that day. She also was sure her mother knew where he stabled the horses when he was there.

So she put on her coat and overshoes and with the teacher's permission ran across to the nearest grain elevator to telephone home.

Would her mother try to get in touch with her Dad, she pleaded, and persuade him to take that Christmas tree off the train on his way home and bring it to the school?

Mrs. Cook didn't think it could be done as her husband hadn't hitched up the bob-sled that day, only the cutter. But she promised to try to contact him and see what he said.

Emily trudged down-heartedly back to the school and joined in helping make the popular look Christmas-like.

Some hours later and just as the task was finished, sleigh bells were heard outside.

"When we opened the door, there stood my Dad, all smiles, and bending almost double under the weight of our real Christmas tree."

When he reached the train he found the tree securely rolled in gunny sacks. He managed to attach it to the tongue of the cutter that reached out between the two horses.

Then, by slow and careful driving, he got it to the school.

"We took the trimmings off the popular in double quick time and with my Dad's help, set the real Christmas tree in its place and put all the decorations on it," Emily Robertson told me.

"Then we rushed away to aroma of home made bread.

The woman remarked, rather wistfully, about that good, good smell, and as the bread was about to come out of the oven, Nan Farebrother offered to give her a loaf.

"While she waited I discovered her husband had deserted her and she had four children about the same ages as ours."

"She had only been able to find a few hours housework and she desperately needed the money from those paper flowers."

Mrs. Farebrother's sympathy was aroused. She took the women's address and a day or so later went to see her.

"It was up three flights of stairs on the top of a very old building in one of the poorest parts of Toronto."

"Inside there was a mattress on the floor, a wide board on two orange boxes for a table, a three-burner gas plate in one corner and for heat, a small, wood-burning stove."

"I hadn't expected such poverty and my children, who were with me, couldn't believe anyone could live like that."

Immediately the Farebrothers were down those stairs again, they went shopping.

"We bought four pairs of long black stockings that we thought would fit those youngsters. Everyone wore long black stockings in those days."

The young Farebrothers took the stocking home, filled them with toys from their own cupboards and tucked in oranges, nuts and candies from the family's Yuletide supply.

When all was ready they climbed those three flights of stairs again, knocked on the door and when it opened, they shouted "Merry Christmas."

Happily, the story does not end there.

Mrs. Farebrother belonged to an Anglican Women's Auxiliary in Toronto and she told about that mattress on the floor and the board for a table at the next meeting.

The auxiliary adopted the family. They held a food and vegetable shower for them, supplied them with warm clothing and found steady work for the mother.

And they kept that up until she was well established and able to take over on her own.

When Nan Farebrother shared this story with me I asked if she knew what eventually became of the family.

She shook her head. "Shortly after that we moved to Kapuskasing in northern Ontario, where my husband continued his work as a stationery engineer. Later again, we came to British Columbia to make a new home on the lower mainland. So we lost track of them completely."

Women Pension Victims?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report prepared for the U.S. justice department says private pension plans discriminate against women.

The 78-page report by a study group on sex discrimination said there is discrimination against both working women and housewives. "It is ironic that American society, which purports to place such a high value on motherhood and the family... has permitted the development of a pension system which generally ignores non-working women," said Sara Kaltenborn, author of the study.

While the U.S. pension system honors income-producing work done by men, "the Puritan work ethic does not apply to women, who are supposed to devote their productive years to homemaking and child-rearing," the report said.

Because wives are not unionized, "their ability to bargain collectively for pension protection is practically non-existent," and working women are discriminated against because pension laws favor job-holders whose careers are not interrupted and who work full-time.

According to a study cited in the report, 16 per cent of men and 21 per cent of women were entitled to benefits under private pension plans, and the median annual pension was $970 for men and $2,080 for women.

The report said U.S. laws governing qualifications for pensions should be changed to benefit women who do not work continuously over their careers and who frequently hold part-time jobs.

Substitute Shoe Polish

What do you do when you want to polish your shoes but find the shoe polish is down to a few dried-up bits rattling around in the bottom of the can? Fake it.

Take a piece of cut lemon and rub the leather all over. Finish off with a soft cloth, just as if you'd used polish. With the look you'll wind up with, no one will know the difference.

PEOPLE GROW OLD IN THEIR MINDS: MD

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A Stanford University doctor says a human body should last up to 120 years, but it wears out so much earlier because people are more terrified of growing old than dying.

"The solution is in celebrating old age," said Dr. Walter Bortz of the Stanford Medical School. "Our idea of who we're going to be when we're 85 is just so grim. And if there is no value to it, then why seek it?"

He said the key to longer life sounds deceptively simple: "Good nutrition, good exercise and good rest. Those are the three elements of health."

Coupled with an aggressive program of preventive medicine, he said, that prescription would add at least 10 years to the average lifespan. "But the problem is in really doing it. We must believe that (growing old) can be something valuable, something to look forward to."

Bortz, 48, led a panel discussion on aging at the American Medical Association's national conference.

He said a variety of evidence indicates human beings are biologically and genetically capable of living to be 120 years old.

"Nobody dies of old age," he said in an interview.

"You die of a disease. You die because you wear out at one critical point. The rest of your body is fine, but the chain is only as good as its weakest link."

Heart attacks and strokes are the leading causes of death in the United States and most U.S. researchers agree both can often be prevented by changing to a more healthy lifestyle. The emphasis almost always is on better nutrition and more exercise.

"If I could convince you that to be 85 is really an exciting opportunity and that you will be valuable to yourself and others, then you would give up smoking, you'd run three times a week, you'd lose weight," Bortz said. "And you'd live longer."

"But we don't want to be 85. That's not so much a conscious decision as it is a kind of abandonment (of the body), and because of it, we wear out prematurely."

He said society, with its glorification of youth, sustains the dread of growing old and useless.

Compulsory retirement,

Bortz said, amounts to little more than telling a person who has lived a productive life that "you are no longer of any value."

"America is like a no-magic society," he said. "We're always dashing around. So old people have to integrate themselves into that or they are left behind. Old folks homes are the repositories of these left-behind people."

"Look what I'm getting for Christmas!"

Liquid Diets Not Recommended

your health

By L. L. Coleman, MD

My daughter is overweight. At first, she used to starve herself. Now she's on a new kick. She takes any one of the liquid protein items that she can buy. I've heard that such a diet can be dangerous. If so, I hope you can help me convince her. — Mrs. F.A.

Dear Mrs. A.:

All of these short-cut diet fads are, in my opinion, a waste of time and, sometimes, a risk to health. The widespread use of pre-digested liquid protein products has been under careful and critical inspection by the Food and Drug Administration in Washington.

Studies were set in motion because there have been reported fatalities among people who had ingested the liquid protein product over long periods of time without medical supervision.

One report specifically stated: "The results show that the use of these inadequate pre-digested liquid protein products as a sole source of nutriment results in inadequate intake of most of the essential minerals. Eventually, severe deficiencies would occur if these products were consumed without adequate mineral supplement."

This statement by the FDA is meant as a warning to those dieters who are not under medical supervision. When used for a short time, and when supplementary minerals are added, the diet may be effective in shedding a few pounds. But long-term tained use of these liquid protein substances without medical supervision may be treacherous.

My daughter has got into the habit of wearing tinted sunglasses whether the sun's out or not. They never were prescribed for her. She wears them day and night. She said a lot of her friends in high school do the same thing. Can this eventually be harmful to her vision? — Mrs. G.M.

Dear Mrs. M.:

I think this fad is an affection which should not be encouraged. For people who work under glaring illumination or with reflecting lights, tinted glasses can be beneficial. The reason for this is that some discomfort and fatigue can result when people are exposed to such bright light for long periods of time. I doubt that this occurs in the case of your daughter.

Eye specialists also prescribe tinted glasses for people who have eye ailments or for those who are particularly sensitive to bright lights.

When glasses are not needed for vision, the constant use of dark lenses may put an added strain on the eyes that is totally unnecessary. It should be remembered that the quality of the tinted glass or plastic lens that can be bought over the counter can be poor. Curves and the slightest "ripple" in lenses can put strain on the eyes.

Discouraged Jobless Ignored: Critics

By RON CLINGEN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Brandishing new figures to support claims that thousands of out-of-work Canadians never appear in official unemployment figures because they are too discouraged to look for jobs, Opposition MPs Monday demanded a more realistic monthly report on employment.

Conservative consumer affairs critic Jim McGrath called on the government to make known the number of people registered at Manpower officials across the country in order to provide a true picture of exactly how serious the situation is.

He claimed the figure is always substantially higher than the one given in the official labor force survey.

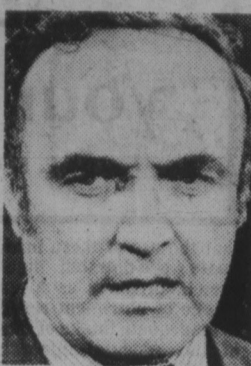

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent said the government should "change the methodology" to include the discouraged workers category so that parts of Canada which are legitimately entitled to more assistance will get it.

In a special report released last week, Statistics Canada identified a "hidden" group of 263,000 unemployed Canadians who, it said, had become so discouraged last March that they didn't even try looking for work.

Employment Minister Bud Cullen said the study made last March was an experiment. He said the department felt the study "wasn't very solidly based" and had informed him that the most solid and objective measure of unemployment still is the number of those who are out of work and are actively looking for work.

However, McGrath argued that in his own province of Newfoundland, Statistics Canada was reporting 31,000 officially unemployed while there were 62,000 registered at Manpower offices looking for jobs.

McGRATH
...realism wanted

He wanted the government to reassess the data it uses to measure the extent of manpower training programs and make-work programs.

HUTTERITES LOSE TAX CASE

OTTAWA (CP) — Nearly 100 Hutterite colonies have lost their court battle against paying taxes to the federal government.

In a Federal Court decision released Monday, Mr. Justice Patrick Mahoney rejected Hutterite arguments that taxation of their income violates natural justice and freedom of religion.

Witnesses had testified that their objection to paying tax was a matter of conscience because government tax funds are spent on the military. The foundation of Hutterite belief is opposition to war.

But Mr. Justice Mahoney said the tax does not "in any way affect the ability of an individual member to practise his religion as he chooses."

He also rejected arguments that the colonies should be exempt like charitable organizations from paying tax.

He dismissed the case brought to court by the 60-year-old Wilson Colony in Alberta and seven other colonies.

It was a test case so the decision applies to 88 other colonies, all members of the Darius-Leut Conference of the Hutterian Brethren Church. At stake was about $37 million they paid in taxes between 1968 and 1975.

Training Lacking: Report

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Employment Minister Bud Cullen suggested Monday the authors of a still-to-be-released report on the training of blue collar workers are using words that "are bound to catch the eye and are bound to be printed."

The report — prepared for the employment and immigration department by the Ottawa firm of Robertson, Nickerson, Group Associates Ltd. — blamed lack of government leadership for much of the plight faced by blue collar workers.

The report said the federal government training programs "need a massive overhaul" and that "the opportunity for high level young Canadians to get into a skilled trade is so nonexistent that the situation can be described as disgraceful."

The report said there is a shortage of upper skilled workers now and predicted it will get more serious as the economy picks up.

The studies concluded that it does not understate the situation to say that "industrial growth in Canada will be inhibited by a lack of skilled workers."

"The ball," the report said, "is now in the government's lap."

Pressed for action to rectify the situation by Conservative Perrin Beatty (Wellington-Grey-Dufferin-Waterloo), Cullen noted the government has just completed agreements with each of the 10 provinces under the adult occupational training act.

But, he stressed, "education is a field solely within the jurisdiction of the provinces."

Cullen said he was trying to encourage industry to play a bigger role in on-the-job training by shifting funds in that direction.

The minister said he was dissatisfied with a study which showed that 75 per cent of the highly-skilled manufacturing jobs in Southwestern Ontario were filled by immigrants rather than on-the-job training.

"Because of that, we are weighting our funding and our money into industrial on-the-job training programs," Cullen told the Commons.

He said the government intends to discourage an apparent preference by industry to do its recruiting from abroad.

Cutoff on Debate Draws MPs Ire

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition parties virtually launched a filibuster of the government's unemployment insurance bill Monday, when it was proposed that committee debate on the controversial legislation be cut off tonight.

Progressive Conservative and New Democratic MPs used a series of tactics to delay a vote in the Commons manpower committee on a Liberal proposal to limit consideration of each clause to 10 minutes and to end all committee debate at a meeting tonight.

Under the proposal by Frank Maine (Wellington), parliamentary secretary to Employment Minister Bud Cullen, the legislation then would go back to the Commons Wednesday for final approval — in keeping with the government hope to have it through Parliament before the Christmas recess starting Dec. 21.

But the opposition MPs, now subject to no time limits on their debate, opposed the measure in a rowdy two-hour session complete with insults, internal party arguments and demands that the committee travel the country "to hear from the grassroots — the unemployed."

An embarrassing moment came for Bill Clarke (Vancouver Quadra), Conservative unemployment insurance critic, who said he had agreed with Maine's proposal at a committee steering meeting Friday "but have since found that such support is in no way shared by my (Conservative) colleagues."

One such colleague was Jim McGrath (PC—St. John's East) who said Maine is "a desperate man putting forward a suggestion for a desperate government."

"For a desperate minister," added John Rodriguez, NDP unemployment insurance spokesman and MP for Nickel Belt. He called the idea draconian and said the NDP would try to delay passage of the bill until after Christmas.

Crown Corp. PO Free of Red Tape

By GINNY GALT
OTTAWA (CP) — The post office could expand services and reduce its deficit under a bill to convert it from a government department to a Crown corporation, Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne said Monday.

Unencumbered by other government departments, the proposed Canada Post Corp. "can move into many new areas as far as communication is concerned."

As a government department, the post office cannot negotiate a new union contract without the intervention of treasury board. It cannot build a new plant without intervention from the public works department and cannot let contracts without approval from the department of supply and services, Lamontagne said.

A more streamlined operation could reduce the deficit, running at more than $500 million a year.

"Government operates very slowly. It is not meant to be a business corporation."

Lamontagne said the board of directors of the proposed new Crown corporation would have "as much autonomy as possible."

But a supervisory post office secretariat, headed by Lamontagne, would ensure that profit was not put before service. And the Canadian Transport Commission would regulate letter-rate increases.

"It is too important to let it go to a Crown corporation whose only objective is to make money."

The secretariat would stay in place as long as necessary for the post office to make a smooth transition from government department to a Crown corporation — perhaps two years.

Walter Dinsdale, Progressive Conservative postal critic, criticized the supervisory secretariat as an unnecessary layer of bureaucracy.

"There is no reason why we can't be served by a completely independent Crown corporation such as Air Canada or Canadian National Railways or the CBC," Dinsdale said.

PLACE TO BEEF OVER POSTAGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Tired of spending more to mail letters every year?

A bill introduced Monday by the federal government would give the public an opportunity, for the first time, to gripe before the Canadian Transport Commission.

The bill to convert the post office from a government department to a Crown corporation would require the post office to file proposed letter rate increases with the commission.

"An interested person who has reason to believe that any letter rate prescribed in a regulation ... is prejudicial to the public interest may file an objection with the commission within 30 days after publication of the regulation in the Canada Gazette," the bill says.

Until now, letter rate increases have been set by cabinet orders and every jump in the cost of mailing letters has been heatedly attacked by opposition members in the Commons.

The next increases already are set to take effect April 1, 1979. The cost of mailing a first-class letter will increase to 17 cents from 14 cents. Last year the cost was 12 cents and in 1976 the cost was 10 cents.

B.C. Trollers Back Away from Court Fight

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

A group of B.C. trollers agreed Monday on the need for a united stand to fight what they see as a concerted effort to put them out of business.

But they backed down on a showdown in the courts.

The 150 trollers voted at a meeting at the Ingham Hotel not to proceed with a federal court challenge of a fisheries department ban Aug. 13 on sockeye fishing for trollers.

The court case was launched in August by a group of fishermen who met in Ucluelet following the sockeye closure.

Al Meadows of Victoria, who attended the initial Ucluelet meetings, pushed Monday for the court case as well as a no-holds barred attack on those threatening the trollers' livelihood.

He chaired the meeting and said today he is disappointed the court case will now be withdrawn.

"I think it is going to be a signal to the bureaucrats that they can come along and make arbitrary regulations with no legal base," he said.

He said there seemed to be a general feeling at the end of the meeting that the trollers should unite around the Pacific Trollers' Association.

Meadows said earlier that the sockeye closure in August was not for purposes of conservation but in order to allocate more of the fish to net fishermen.

He said the fisheries department has no right to make such a reallocation.

"But if there is to be a movement toward reallocation, then we want it to be democratic so that each segment will get their fair share."

During debate on the court case and in earlier speeches, the trollers expressed the view that their industry is dying and that like the logging industry, the little guy is being squeezed out by the big companies.

They were told the International Pacific Salmon Commission last week proposed regulations which will cut heavily into the amount of time they are allowed on the fishing grounds in 1979.

The joint U.S.-Canada commission is proposing that from June 15 to Sept. 7, the trollers be restricted to 10 days on the grounds and then spend four days in port.

The proposals now go to the two governments for study and the commission will make its decision in February.

The trollers at Monday's meeting were a mixed group, some belonging to the Pacific Trollers' Association, some to the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union while others were non-aligned.

There appeared to be a split as to whether they should take a militant stand, proceeding initially with the court case, or take a more conservative approach.

PTA spokesmen favored a more moderate stand.

They all agreed there is a need for unity but the question was whether to form a new representative group or to rally around one of the existing organizations.

The problem, Meadows said, is that a group of bureaucrats is gradually shutting down the trolling industry.

"We have no choice," Meadows said. "We have to go militant; we have to go public; we have to jump up and down."

There are about 1,600 trollers who fish B.C. waters. They use hooks and line to fish for salmon and are the front-line fishermen, getting first crack at the salmon as they come in from the Pacific.

They differ from trawlers who use nets to fish for groundfish.

John Sanderson of Victoria, one of the plaintiffs in the fishermen's statement of claim with the federal court, said if the trollers didn't proceed with the court case they would be backing down "to a bunch of bureaucrats who are doing something that is illegal and beyond their power."

"It seems to me that the real issue here is survival," he said.

"We are on the verge of vanishing."

Sanderson said some people feel the trollers are making too much money but he said statistics show the trollers' take is pretty stable compared to that of the net fishermen whose revenue suffers more drastic ups and downs.

He said the real reason for the tightening of regulations on trollers is the increased pressure from net and sports fishermen.

Sanderson said the trollers are going to have to go public and develop an awareness of their problem.

"We have to start waving our bloody arms."

"We have got to make the public aware that a whole lifestyle is at stake."

PTA president John Makowichuk of Bamfield said the trollers are being pushed to the brink as the politicians play games with the fishing industry.

He said the PTA, with a membership of 505, is the officially-recognized voice for the trollers and the fishermen should unite behind it.

Makowichuk said a militant stand doesn't seem to be the best way to handle the problem and called for negotiations rather than confrontation.

"We are going to have to defeat this at the political level."

Another fishermen opposed to the court case said the move will encourage net fishermen to challenge areas now fished by the trollers.

A spokesman for the UFAWU said the trollers would be better off spending their money on a public demonstration against the fisheries department.

Another fishermen who favored the court challenge said the trollers face extinction in two years.

He said the fisheries department and the fishing companies have wanted to get rid of the trollers for years but "they don't know how to exterminate us."

DETROIT — U.S. automakers say it will take a major scientific breakthrough or radical changes in American lifestyle to meet a government challenge to "re-invent the car" by the 1990s.

Big Four auto company spokesmen said research into exotic new engines and alternative power sources for cars is years away from producing a practical replacement for the gasoline-consuming internal combustion engine.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams last week warned auto company officials they must do the job in little more than a decade when increased transportation needs will cause energy demand to skyrocket as the world's petroleum supply begins to dwindle.

Ford, General Motors, Chrysler Corp., American Motors Corp. and other auto-related firms have spent millions of dollars in recent years — much of it from federal grants — in research on a variety of futuristic power sources and exotic new fuels for automobiles.

Among the projects engineers consider as front-runners — those that could be perfected, given certain scientific developments — are battery-powered electric vehicles, electric "hybrid" engines, gasoline turbine, programmed combustion and stratified-charge engines.

Less exotic possibilities are expanded use of diesel engines — an economical power plant that has been around for years — and turbocharging, a concept GM and Ford currently are using to boost the power of small, fuel-efficient engines.

Chrysler, meanwhile, announced Monday it will temporarily shut down three U.S. assembly plants next month and lay off 15,700 workers, some indefinitely, in an effort to halt a financial tailspin and trim stockpiles of slow-selling cars.

The No. 3 automaker, which has lost nearly a quarter of a billion dollars so far this year, said it will halt production for two weeks at its plants in Hamtramck, Mich., Newark, Del., and St. Louis.

The company said its seven other North American car and truck facilities will operate normally through January.

The announcement followed weeks of rumors that the financially ailing firm was preparing severe cost-cutting measures to pull out of a nine-month financial downturn. The company reported a $158 million loss in the July-September quarter alone.

Ford Motor Co. today announced it is raising the price of large cars and trucks an average of about $200 in a move to encourage sales of smaller, more fuel efficient cars.

Ford said the increase applies to the company's luxury and larger specialty cars. Prices on small cars were not affected, the company said.

When spread across Ford's entire car lineup, the increase amounts to an average $38 or .5 per cent.

Models included in the price increase are the Ford LTD II, up $123 or 2.3 per cent; Thunderbird, up $122 or 2.1 per cent; Cougar XR-7, up $122 or 2 per cent; Lincoln coupes, sedans, Mark V and Versailles, up $267 or about 2 per cent.

Truck prices were raised an average $54 or 0.7 per cent.

Musical magic was created for youngsters at Sundance Elementary school Monday by Victoria musicians Richard King and Veronica Jones. Youngsters sat entranced as pair played Christmas carols and other songs in impromptu session in which small fry surround them on stage.

Screen Idol's Beatings Bared

Christina: I always loved her

TORONTO (CP) — Christina Crawford, adopted daughter of the late actress Joan Crawford, says she did not write a book about her mother for revenge or fame.

Miss Crawford's book Mommie Dearest, which has sold 260,000 hard-cover copies in the U.S. and 10,000 in Canada since its publication in November, says she suffered beatings and torment at the hands of her famous mother.

In Toronto to promote the book which a number of Canadian daily newspapers have serialized, Miss Crawford said that when her mother died, she "thought it was important—and therapeutic—to write the truth about the woman who had become a national fantasy."

"I'd been part of that fantasy since I was a baby, carefully rehearsed in all my lines and scenes by mother."

Miss Crawford, 39, says there is no bitterness in her memoirs and accepts with composure the allegations by some of her mother's more virulent fans that she was bent on an idol-smashing ego trip in writing the book.

"I really love my mother," she said. "Despite the horrifying things that happened, I always loved her when she was alive. And since her death a year and a half ago I still love her dearly."

Miss Crawford said: "Mommie wasn't a monster."

"She was just a sick, desperately lonely woman as I got to learn years later."

Miss Crawford said she her analysis of what caused her mother's outbursts of fury, which she took out on her daughter and adopted son Christopher, is that the actress was forcing the children to live the penance of her own tough childhood.

"She herself was beaten as a kid," Miss Crawford said.

"Her mother's three husbands deserted her. And she had to work her way through school at the convent as a scullery maid where her school mates all laughed at her."

Asked why her mother adopted four infants and then treated them badly, Miss Crawford said she could "hazard the guess that she wanted unquestioning, adoring babies who served her publicity purposes."

"She built a public image on us as her career began to decline. Millions of fans thought: 'What a wonderful woman to take four little orphans into her home.'"

When the actress died on May 10, 1977, at age 73, she cut Christina and her brother from the will without a penny, adding the cryptic phrase: "for reasons which are well known to them."

Fallout Survivors Finally Are Heard

ST. GEORGE, Utah (WP) — After 25 years of governmental indifference and disagreement, the people who were once regularly exposed to radioactive fallout from U.S. atomic bomb tests have finally made major progress in getting officials to hear their claim that the fallout caused leukemia and cancer.

Their successes come at a time of growing evidence supporting their assertion that, as one lawyer puts it, "they were citizen-soldier casualties of the Cold War."

The University of Utah had disclosed that an as-yet-unpublished study by its researchers showed at least "cause for concern" over the nuclear testing program and the incidence of leukemia and cancer in southern Utah.

In the 1950s, complaining residents of the fallout zone—tens of thousands live scattered over the rural areas of three states declared "virtually uninhabited" by the old Atomic Energy Commission—were dismissed out of hand.

But President Carter recently took three steps toward taking up their cause. It was a stark reversal from the congressional response to the 1977 petition from survivors who wanted protection from atomic testing. That was greeted with references to "communist-inspired scare stories." Several of the signers of that petition have since died of cancer.

In addition, Utah Gov. Scott M. Matheson now sees the possible adverse health effects of a decade of nuclear testing as "the biggest public health issue in the state." He is expected to ask the legislature next month for money to begin dealing with it.

The entire Utah congressional delegation has joined to pressure the White House and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to ascertain what illnesses, if any, were caused by the tests and to help any victims or their surviving relatives.

And the residents here recently formed a "committee of survivors" to locate scores of leukemia and other cancer victims to document the connection they see between widespread leukemia and other cancers and exposure to the radioactivity.

They are finding victims in numbers far beyond their own fearful expectations. In addition, many have either filed, or plan to file, wrongful death claims with the government.

Besides compiling the names of those who suffered and died of cancer in the scattered small towns and on the big ranches of the fallout zone, the committee of survivors has found former residents like Pamela Olsen, a 24-year-old leukemia patient, living with their diseases in other parts of the country.

Their wrenching illnesses have produced financial hardship, emotional strain and personal loss.

DRINK KILLS 90

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Ninety persons have died after drinking tainted bootleg liquor over the weekend in the eastern India mining town of Dhanbad, newspapers reported today.

More than 100 others stricken by the "bootleg drink" were admitted to hospitals in the town 150 miles northwest of Calcutta, the reports said.

More than 3,000 persons die every year and thousands of others are incapacitated or go blind from drinking illicit liquor in India, according to published reports.

Blasts Kill 11

WINDHOEK (AP) — Two separate guerrilla land mine blasts killed 11 black civilians in the northern part of Namibia, officials said today.

The military command said the explosions occurred within two hours of each other Monday in an area where there have been numerous sabotage incidents recently.

A military spokesman blamed the incidents on the South-West African Peoples Organization, a guerrilla group opposed to South African administration of this territory, also known as South-West Africa.

The guerrillas denounced last week's elections for a constitutional assembly and threatened to disrupt them.

Detainees Released In Kenya

NAIROBI (Reuter) — President Daniel Arap Moi announced today that all people detained under national-security regulations in Kenya have been released.

The president, who took over after the country's first president, Jomo Kenyatta, died Aug. 22, made the announcement at celebrations marking the 15th anniversary of Kenya's independence.

He said that to demonstrate his firm faith in the political maturity of his countrymen, "I have today released all detainees."

"All those who have been in detention are at this moment in their homes."

He did not say how many were freed.

The president concluded his announcement by saying: "However, I want to warn everyone that my government will not hesitate to take firm action against anyone whose actions threaten our stability and unity."

The detainees released included three former members of Parliament, the country's leading novelist, Ngugi Wa Thiong'o, and a member of a banned opposition party who has been in detention without trial since 1969.

C-130s Grounded After 7th Crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force has grounded all its C-130 aircraft—more than 700 in all—for safety inspections after one of the big cargo planes crashed in Kentucky, killing all five crew members, a Pentagon spokesman said.

Maj. Art Dederick said the air force Logistics Command ordered throttle control cables of all C-130s inspected within 10 days.

A spokesman at Fort Campbell army base in southwestern Kentucky said the C-130 Hercules crashed short of the runway there Sunday after the pilot radioed he was having throttle problems.

The plane and crew had been based at Little Rock air force base, Ark. and it was the seventh fatal crash of C-130s based there since 1970.

The air force grounded 245 C-130s built before 1973 immediately after the latest crash, but the Pentagon said the new order grounds all of the aircraft: 311 assigned to Military Airlift Command.

Other countries—including Canada—using the turbo-prop cargo transport aircraft also have been notified of the U.S. Air Force inspections, the spokesman said.

Israelis Free Hostage

TEL AVIV (AP) — Three Israelis brandishing starter pistols burst into the West German cultural centre Monday and seized a female hostage, but released her and surrendered after two hours, police said.

No injuries were reported. The raiders said by telephone they were demanding abolition of the West German statute of limitations whereby new prosecutions of those accused of Nazi war crimes could not be opened after 1978.

Police said the three were led by Andre Kolcynski, who last May set fire to himself outside the West German Embassy and shouted anti-Nazi slogans. He was not seriously hurt.

In 1977, Kolcynski seized an empty room in the embassy and brandished a pistol before police took him away. He was sentenced to two years in prison but the term was suspended.

The Polish-born Kolcynski, 41, a painter, is a convert to Judaism. He spent several years under Nazi occupation in the Warsaw ghetto.

An Israel radio broadcast quoted Kolcynski as saying his group intended to hold the centre for a week and set up a "concentration camp" for the Germans held.

Police spokesman Abraham Brommet said police surrounded the building and talked the three into leaving. "We know Kolcynski very well from previous occasions," he said.

Police Supt. Amnon Lorr said the pistols the men carried are capable only of firing blanks and are of the type used for track meets.

HERE'S ONE FOR RIPLEY . . . HIC!

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Pa. (AP) — The driver of the hearse got tipsy, then lost, making the man in the back two days late for his final appointment, police said.

"It really happened," Lieut. Robert Eckert of Bensalem Township police said Monday. "I guess Ripley would want this one."

He said it all started Saturday at a church in Philadelphia where funeral services were held for a 62-year-old man. Later the procession headed for the cemetery, but along the way the hearse made a wrong turn.

"They waited several hours at the cemetery for it to arrive," said Eckert. "When it didn't, they had the service, then notified police that the hearse was missing."

That evening police found the hearse off the highway. With it were the driver, a helper and the coffin.

"The driver was slightly inebriated and couldn't drive and the fellow with him didn't have a driver's licence," Eckert said. "It was a cold, rainy day and I guess they had something along to keep them warm."

The driver, who was not identified, was not charged, police said.

BLOW TO ECONOMY

Guerrillas Torch Rhodesian Refinery

SALISBURY (UPI) — Guerrillas blew up an oil refining complex containing tons of fuel in the greatest blow they have dealt Rhodesia's economy since the guerrilla war began six years ago, authorities said today.

In the Zambian capital of Lusaka, Joshua Nkomo's Zimbabwe African Peoples Union said the party's military arm struck late Monday night, sparking the giant fire. Rhodesian military sources said they fully believe the guerrilla claim.

A guerrilla spokesman said the destruction of the fuel dump was a "crippling blow" to the Rhodesian war effort. It touched off the worst fire in the history of the Rhodesian capital.

The destruction of the refinery resulted in small lines of motorists forming at Salisbury gas stations at dawn despite government moves to forestall panic buying.

The government issued a statement saying: "There will be no petrol shortage as a result of last night's fire... It will not be necessary to reduce petrol rations for private motorists or business users... It is hoped there will be little or no interruption of normal supplies to the public."

Police said there were no deaths or injuries in the fire, which sent up flames visible 10 miles away and cast a pall of smoke over Salisbury's industrial area.

"With a little luck, we should be finished Friday or Saturday morning," one fire official said.

Military sources said a number of witnesses reported seeing tracer bullets and possibly rockets. The communiqué said only that "extensive follow-up operations are in progress."

War Over But Not The Dying

The war's over, the shooting's stopped yet the dying still goes on in Vietnam.

But instead of soldiers, starvation and sickness stalk the land.

Things were tough in Vietnam last year. The country experienced a food shortage of at least 1.2 million tons.

That's not surprising though, because the war took a toll of more than just human lives. Some 1.5 million oxen and buffaloes were killed; about 10 million hectares of rice fields were destroyed in the fighting; two-thirds of the mangrove forests and two-thirds of the rubber plantations were wiped out.

In addition, about 10 per cent of the entire land mass was contaminated by toxic chemicals and rendered sterile.

Imagine a similar scene in B.C. with the forests razed and the salmon poisoned in the sea. Where would we turn? What hardships would we face?

The people of Victoria are among those who have responded in the past and who are being asked for help again by the Unitarian Service Committee.

The USC does far more than raise funds for Vietnam, however, because its role is to help those in need wherever they're found.

The poor in Bangladesh and Africa will not be forgotten, promises campaign director Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova.

Dr. Hitschmanova says that in a recent tour of Vietnam she saw first hand that the plight of the Vietnamese is still desperate. She wants to provide $400,000 to help build three new medical centres.

The Times is helping the USC to raise the badly needed funds.

Union Bites SIN Badge

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A union representing 4,100 workers at Canadian General Electric will seek an Ontario Supreme Court injunction today to stop the use of an identification badge system that contains workers' social insurance numbers.

Stanley Bullock, a spokesman for the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, described the system as an unwarranted invasion of employees' privacy.

The system, which requires all employees to wear badges bearing their names, pictures and social insurance numbers, went into effect Monday.

Stewart McLaren, a company spokesman, said the system is a security measure and replaces an identification card system.

Bullock said the union is taking the position that the company is inviting abuse of the numbers by forcing workers to display them.

Anyone with access to information in computers could use an employee's number to learn such things as his medical history, school record, employment record, credit rating and any court convictions, Bullock said.

He said that if the company insists on having an identification system, social insurance numbers should not be used.

"They have no business using that number," Bullock added. "It's meant for things like unemployment insurance, income tax and old-age security."

Guay's Way? Just Fake it!

OTTAWA (CP) — When Senator Joe Guay was revenue minister he told a Manitoba man to make up a social insurance number if he objected to using his real one to purchase a Canada Savings Bonds, a Conservative MP said Monday.

Jack Hare, who represents Guay's old Manitoba constituency of St. Boniface, asked Deputy Prime Minister Allan Rock if this was government policy. MacEachen said he would investigate.

Opposition Leader Joe Clark's office gave reporters a copy of a November, 1977, letter Hare referred to.

In it, Guay said the Bank of Canada asked savings bond purchasers for a social insurance number — generally referred to as SIN — in order to simplify record keeping. It had nothing to do with income tax laws.

CO-ED STABBED, MAN CHARGED

A 21-year-old man has been charged with attempted murder in connection with the stabbing of a University of Victoria student in her apartment at 1300 Yates Monday night.

William Bruce Tucker, also of 1300 Yates, is also charged with armed robbery.

Tucker was remanded to Wednesday for a bail hearing and election of trial method.

City police said Ana Ganho Santos was stabbed several times in the back, arms, wrist and throat by a man who entered her apartment about 6 p.m.

The man fled and Santos managed to get to a phone to call a friend who then contacted police.

Officers took a suspect in the apartment building into custody about a half-hour later.

Santos is listed in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital today.

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Two days of fierce street battles between troops and anti-shah protesters have killed at least 40 persons and wounded more than 600 in Isfahan, Iran's second city, reliable medical sources reported today.

The sources said the five hospitals in the industrial city, 400 kilometres south of Tehran, were packed with casualties, many of them in serious condition.

The sources reported more than 20 of the persons slain by heavy gunfire were killed Monday when rioting broke out after a Moslem religious demonstration at the climax of the powderkeg holy month of Moharram.

Opposition sources claimed hundreds of shah foes were massacred by army gunfire, some of it machine-gun barrages from helicopter gunships prowling the skies above the city.

However, a government official denied the helicopter report, calling it "absolutely ridiculous, utter nonsense."

Meanwhile, strikes in the oil fields cut production to near-record lows, costing Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi $56 million a day.

Other clashes were reported Tuesday in the provincial towns of Tabriz, Ardebil, Zanzan and Ara where troops reportedly killed another eight demonstrators.

No casualties were reported among the 8,000 Americans who turned down the chance to join last week's mass evacuation and remained in Isfahan, 248 miles south of Tehran.

Opposition sources claimed troops were grabbing people off the streets, ordering them to shout "long live the shah" and beating them up if they refused.

The opposition also said the army had trucked in hundreds of pro-shah farmers and turned them loose in the streets to battle the anti-shah demonstrators.

Witnesses said the Isfahan violence began Monday night after nearly one million people there marched through the city in an anti-shah protest coinciding with a parade by two million in Tehran.

The protesters first attacked the offices of the dreaded SAVAK secret police and were met by a hail of gunfire from SAVAK agents. Five were reported killed in the Monday night shooting.

Those deaths brought the mob out onto the streets.

Letter Bombs Blast 2

BELFAST (AP) — Letter-bombs blew up in the face of a Northern Ireland prison officer's wife and in the hands of a postman today, severely injuring them. Police later defused another bomb.

The Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army warned of a renewed terror campaign 16 days ago after it killed the deputy governor of the Maze prison on the doorstep of his Belfast home.

The prison officer's wife was in her North Belfast home when the letter-bomb in the morning mail blew up in her face, police said.

Warnings were broadcast through radio stations but they were too late to help a postman who was making the rounds.

Group Dials for Cutoff Of Telephone Freebies

OTTAWA (CP) — A consumer advocacy group says cabinet ministers, who earn $58,900 a year, get their telephone bills paid by the Crown.

And the Consumers Association of Canada wants a list of every person who obtained a free ride on any Canadian airline for the last year.

It has recently been disclosed that cabinet ministers get free flights on air lines.

Action Bell Canada, says that under a 1963 order-in-council the government may pay the telephone bill of home telephones for ministers and the Speakers of the Commons and Senate.

The order also permits the Crown to pay the bill of the home phone of minister's private secretary or executive assistant. These make more than $20,000 a year.

Action Bell Canada distributed copies of the 1963 order in protesting against free telephones to politicians and to employees of Bell Canada.

It cost $5 million a year to give about 30,000 Bell executives, directors, managers, employees and retired employees the free service, it said.

Communication legislation that had been introduced in the Commons allowed the telephone company to continue to provide the free service to its employees.

The consumer association said members became concerned about free flights after it was disclosed that some government figures, including Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed, accepted airline passes.

"It has been pointed out that the practice of giving free transportation potentially decreases the revenue of a carrier and thereby could shift the cost of providing such transportation to other passengers by way of fare increases," says the association in a letter to the transport commission.

It adds that the practice "could tend to bring the air industry into disrepute."

Viet Bill Ottawa's Duty: MP

The federal government has violated its own legislation and a UN convention by not fully financing care for Vietnamese refugees, an Edmonton MP charged Monday.

And in Ottawa, an immigration spokesman said the refugees will be charged for the cost of flying them to Canada from Malaysia.

MP Bill Skoreyko, vice-chairman of the federal Progressive Conservative caucus committee on immigration, said Ottawa is obliged by a UN agreement to pay for all services for refugees instead of trying to make the provinces pay.

In addition, he said the federal government assumed full responsibility for refugee settlement under the Immigration Act.

Skoreyko, MP for Edmonton East, accused Bud Cullen, federal immigration minister, of a "blatant case of breach of commitment" by reneging after suggesting to the provinces that special aid might be possible.

The 604 Vietnamese refugees rescued from the Hai Hong freighter signed documents during interviews aboard the freighter promising to repay passage assistance loans from the federal government, an immigration spokesman revealed today. The documents were explained to them through translators.

How much the refugees will each be billed for the flight aboard Canadian Forces planes has not yet been calculated. But the spokesman said it likely will equal the cost of a commercial charter flight.

The spokesman said the refugees will be allowed up to two years to pay if they cannot afford the expenditure immediately.

Meanwhile, in Kuala Lumpur, a newspaper said today another boat carrying 300 Vietnamese refugees has landed on Malaysia's eastern coast and more are on the way.

The New Straits Times said the vessel may be the first of about 300 refugee boats en route to Malaysia from Vietnam.

And in Taiwan, survivors of a boatload of Vietnamese refugees stranded on an uninhabited islet for 42 days reported how they roasted and ate the flesh of their relatives.

"Some refugees donated their bodies to their relatives before they died, hoping they could hang on until rescued," Wang Yuen-kon, a Vietnamese of Chinese descent who bought his way out of Vietnam, said from his hospital bed in Taiwan Monday.

"I hate to bring this to my memory again," Wang said. "But I have to tell you what happened. They were so desperate, but that couldn't save their lives either."

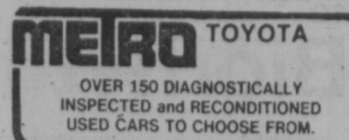

TYING HERSELF in knots doesn't seem to bother Kathy Holmes, 6, of Edmonton during a demonstration for friends and parents at her final baton twirling class.

Caring for Poinsettias

1. Place the plant in a bright area, but not in direct sunlight. Avoid cold drafts. Also, they should be kept away from excessive heat. This includes the top of the TV set, which becomes warm when in use.
2. Water plant thoroughly when soil surface becomes dry to the touch, to the extent that excess runs out of the drainage holes at the bottom of the pot (foil wrapped pots should have holes punched in the foil at the bottom). Water that collects in the drainage receptacle should be discarded.
3. Poinsettias may be placed outside after risk of frost is past.

BIG Beam Box

The Beam Box is the first electronically directable FM antenna. You place it on a shelf near your receiver and hook it up to the antenna terminals of your receiver. The Beam Box requires no independent source of electricity. You'll get more stations, and you'll get them better. And for maybe the first time, you'll hear the performance your receiver was designed to deliver.

L110

The L110 is a three-way system that employs the same principles of wide, consistent frequency response and dispersion to approach the realism of the L212 in a bookshelf enclosure. An advanced, sophisticated crossover contributes to the L110's remarkable performance. 125-mm (5-inch) high frequency dome radiator 130-mm (5-inch) midrange loudspeaker 250-mm (10-inch) low frequency loudspeaker Crossover frequencies: 1 kHz, 4 kHz Sensitivity: 89 dB SPL, 1 watt, 1 m (3.3 feet) Grille color: black

L40

New techniques in acoustical analysis and computer simulation were applied to create and refine the L40. The L40's high frequency dome radiator has a 100-mm (4-inch) diameter and superb power capacity, and a uniquely damped low frequency loudspeaker for controlled, smooth frequency response, give the L40 performance unrivaled in its class. 100-mm (4-inch) high frequency dome radiator 250-mm (10-inch) low frequency loudspeaker Crossover frequency: 1.8 kHz Sensitivity: 88 dB SPL, 1 watt, 1 m (3.3 feet) Grille Colors: brown, rust, tan

275⁰⁰

We've got 'em — the entire line of JBL's newest loudspeakers. In bookshelf, floor-standing, even horn, transducers, everything. We can even provide you with complete plans for building your own enclosure.

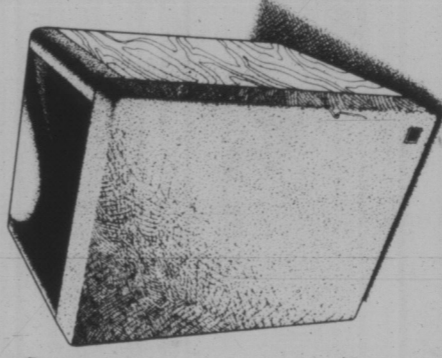

L19

For professionals who need an accurate reproducer in control rooms where space is limited, JBL recently created a broadcast monitor. Its performance — unprecedented in an enclosure of such compact size — is the result of a carefully matched pair of drivers from the broadcast and recording industries. The L19 is its acoustically identical twin for the home. 40-mm (1 1/2-inch) high frequency loudspeaker 130-mm (5-inch) midrange loudspeaker Crossover frequencies: 1.8 kHz, 5 kHz Sensitivity: 87 dB SPL, 1 watt, 1 m Grille color: brown

Jensen Car Stereo Receivers and Speakers

A car stereo for superb sound reproduction in every mode: cassette, FM and AM.
The R410's Local/Distance control assures the best FM reception on any locale.
And the remarkably sensitive FM tuner pulls in more stations with less interference.

Advanced leather-touch electronic controls replace manual switches.

And numerous receiver features improve the sound: Dolby® Noise Reduction, Loudness, Fader, Balance, Separate Bass and Treble controls and Interstation Muting.

There's even an exclusive Automatic Tape Alarm that reminds the listener to remove an engaged cassette when the ignition is turned off.

Dual Cones

Jensen high performance 5 1/2" stereo speaker kit

Two rugged, weather resistant 5 1/2" hi-fi speakers. Extended frequency response, powerful 20 oz. Syntox-6® ceramic magnets.
Dual cone design, with Flexair® cone suspension.

54⁹⁵

Jensen 5 1/4" coaxial stereo speaker kit

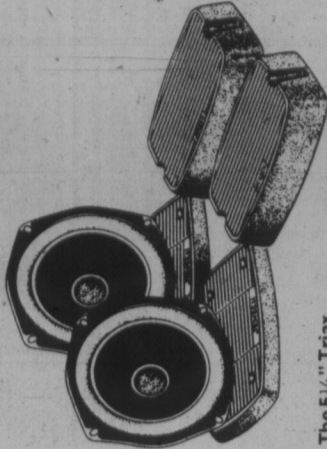

Extended frequency response from the shape of things to come. Two 5 1/4" coaxial speakers with a 25 watt power rating. Powerful 20 oz.
Syntox-6® ceramic magnets. Sweeter® solid state tweeter. Flexair® cone suspension. Kit includes 30' heavy-duty speaker cable, custom grills, mounting hardware, instructions.

Triaxials

The 5 1/4" Triaxial

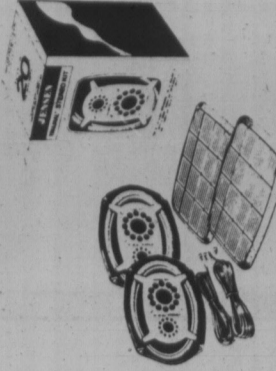

The 5 1/4" Triaxial is specifically designed for mounting in front doors, now making 3-way sound for the front seat a reality.

This 5 1/4" Triaxial features individual tweeter and midrange drivers in a unit that's separate from the 5 1/4" woofer.

That way the tweeter and mid-range can be mounted high on the front door, headliner, or dashboard, where their high and mid frequencies will reach the listener's ears.

The woofer, on the other hand, mounts low in the doors. Installation is easy with the new shallow housing. And the resonant bass tones will reach the listener's ears.

119⁹⁵

Jensen 6" x 9" coaxial stereo speaker kit

Distortion free sound from two 6" x 9" coaxial speakers. Powerful 20 oz. Syntox-6® ceramic magnets, separate 3" tweeter, 25 watt power rating, compatible with 4 and 8 ohm tape units.
Flexair® cone suspension. The ultimate in high-fidelity sound. Kit includes 30' heavy-duty speaker cable, custom grills, mounting hardware, instructions.

84⁹⁵

The 6" x 9" Triaxial

Three-way sound. Jensen started it all with the 6" x 9" Triaxial. The first car stereo speaker ever with a separate woofer, tweeter and midrange. And its popularity is still going strong.

Now there are two more members of the Triaxial 3-way speaker family. Each with its own specific applications that make Jensen Triaxials available to more cars than ever.

the incredible amt 1b

HEIL AIR-MOTION TRANSFORMER

Midrange and high frequency signals are reproduced by a low full size Heil air motion transformer utilizing an improved focusing system. When compared with conventional cone or dome loudspeaker designs, the Heil loudspeaker offers a greater dynamic range, a greater ability to recreate the original musical reality.

The presence and, above all, the performance of the amt 1b convey the exceptional beauty and class of the Heil loudspeaker. The total effect is that of excellence — the feel of ESS.

In an age given to overstatement it is difficult to convey the achievement represented by the amt 1b. Audition this remarkable loudspeaker. Listen carefully. Discover a truly superb instrument.

ESS, in reconstructing the uncompromising excellence of the classic amt 1b in a versatile bookshelf format, has taken great pains to develop a design concept used in the more expensive floor standing amt 1b.

The amt Bookshelf is, in every detail, the finest instrument ESS is capable of making in this convenient format. Which is why it is so popular. Which is why it is so responsive, spectacularly sounding, cleanly handsome loudspeaker is the ultimate bookshelf. Quite simply, the finest... at any price.

The trimline floor-standing cabinet of the LS-4 is not only handsome, it is supremely functional. By providing more interior volume and by permitting the passive radiator to be front mounted, the LS-4 has been realized. The slender pedestal improves bass response by raising the woofer off the ground and, most importantly, naturally and, unobtrusively permits the tweeter to radiate at ear level — a supremely important detail of the LS-4's construction. The ideal harmony: The Tempest LS-4.

The low frequency transducers used in the LS-5 loudspeakers utilize a magnetic circuit that critically damps the drivers' moving assembly to make possible a flat frequency over an extended range. The frequency over an extended range has been chosen that create a seamless transition between the woofer and the high definition "Power Ring". Heil air motion transformer. The result: clean, crisp bass without obscuring the great clarity and detail of the Heil midrange tweeter.

The ESS Tempest LS-8 loudspeakers combine superb sound quality, efficiency, and economy in a series of Heil air motion transformer loudspeakers fitting every sound reproduction requirement. Surpassing the sound quality of any other speaker, the ESS Tempest LS-8 delivers un-surpassed sonic excellence.

But hearing is believing. Listen to the new Tempest Series from ESS — unmatched for performance, efficiency, and economy; another generation of Heil loudspeakers delivering sound as clear as light.

The least expensive marantz is still a marantz.

And that means the 2216 gives you the same painstaking craftsmanship and quality material that characterize every Marantz component.

The Marantz 2216 delivers a minimum continuous power output of 16 watts per channel across the full band-width from 20 Hz to 20 KHz, with no more than 0.5% total harmonic distortion, both channels driven to 8 ohms. And an impressive number of the design concepts featured in more expensive Marantz receivers.

Other features include defeatable FM muting, main and remote speaker switching, headphone jack, dual-purpose AM signal strength/FM center channel tuning meter, slide-type balance control, Marantz exclusive Gyro Touch Tuning and a full range of inputs and outputs.

Inside and out, the Model 2216 is every inch a Marantz. Even so, we've managed to keep the price down to what you might expect to pay for an ordinary receiver.

5 Band Graphic Equalizer
60 Watt Stereo Amplifier

The concept of graphic equalizer/amplifiers originated with their first design over two years ago. They are still the leader. By far the most compact equalizer/amplifier unit, it delivers a clean, crisp 60W RMS of stereo sound for practically distortion-free listening. The five bands of equalization permit finger tip control of full 12 dB cut or boost at 60, 250, 1000, 3500 and 10000 Hz. The front-rear fader control contributes to the proper balancing of the speakers in a four speaker installation. The overall performance of the car stereo system is further enhanced by the volume control of the Model 310 which permits listening at low levels with minimal distortion.

40 Watt Stereo Amplifier

The output of the CAR-FI Model 3100 amplifier is a crisp 40 Watts RMS. It is the ideal answer for high fidelity sound for smaller cars.

The 3100 amplifier has the most advanced power integrated circuits. It is also equipped with Circuit Guard™, the microsecond electronic circuit breaker. This device virtually eliminates damage to the amplifier through accidental shorts or overloads.

The convenient plug-in feature allows easy installation and interconnection with CAR-FI's model 4000B three band equalizer.

INTRODUCES THE WORLD'S FIRST
2Speed CASSETTE DECKS

Recording engineers recognize that the way to obtain more professional results is to increase the speed at which tape is moved past the heads.

Until now, all conventional cassette decks have recorded and played back at 1 7/8 inches per second only. The new B-1-C tape decks do this ... superbly. When used at 1 7/8 ips, they exceed virtually every existing performance spec. At 3 3/4 ips, they establish new standards.

This faster tape speed results in dramatic improvements in frequency response, dynamic range, signal-to-noise, and wow and flutter. It also provides much thicker reind and fast forward

The T-1 is B IC's "basic" model. It incorporates the three performance features that set these decks apart:

- ☐ Two speed Operation (1.7/8 and 3 1/4 ips)
- ☐ Broadband Electronics
- ☐ High-speed Tape Handling

Music Systems

Why settle for less than the MARANTZ when you want the sound system? Over all the frequencies you can hear, the 2215 AM/FM receiver gives 16 watts per channel of guaranteed power. All that power, plus high filter to cut out record and FM hiss, music from 5 sources, two sets of speakers, an optional walnut cabinet is available. The 6025 Marantz turntable is new and great value — belt drive, precision tone arm, semi automatic operation. Shure cartridge — great sound. All this Marantz performance in a compact, elegant package. Spread the word. The SJ12 speakers, four 12" bass speakers, 100 watt tweeter to give you all the music. Supplies are limited. Hear it today — Marantz... sounds better.

At the centre of our system, the new Marantz 1530 AM/FM Stereo Receiver is a medium-power receiver which features "high-power" features in the bargain. The Model 1530's features include separately detuned bass, treble, and mid-range control; 120db per octave highlighter; tape monitor and tape copy function and dual tuning meters. All this tape monitor per channel with not more than .08% HFO makes the Model 1530 a performer. An optional wood case is available for a small charge to reproduce the luxurious sound of the Model 1530. Model 22 speakers use the same high-quality components as the Model 1530 for maximum accuracy while not forcing efficiency. All the details on the new B.I.C. speakers systems see facing page.

This complete stereo system is one of the best we've ever put together. The CR420 AM/FM stereo receiver has 25 + 25 watts RMS at less than .05% total distortion. That's very clean. The YP-211 belt drive semi-automatic turntable includes hinged cover and top rated magnetic cartridge. Match these with the NS-220 rock monitor 8" 2-way speaker systems and the sound is exceptional. Top quality and top value, you get both from YAMAHA AUDIO and A & B SOUND. This system offers you a full 5 year warranty.

FINALLY FULL REALISM!

The revolutionary washable superscreen features a patent pending construction and optical coating which provides durability, contrast, color purity, sharpness and side light rejection that is unique to all screen technologies. The superscreen has mastered the ancient law of reflection; it projects the brightest picture obtainable under high ambient use, then automatically adjusts the picture brightness into a widening viewing zone as your room darkens. As your room darkens (less competition for the reflectance value of each row) more rows share the projector's light so the viewing zone expands automatically. A true innovation in screen technology.
